

PLANTERS WATCH USHER'S SUCCESS GRAVES COUNTY

Means of Raising Money to Move Crops Interest Association Tobacco Men in Western District Just at This Season of Year.

NONE HAVE PROPOSED PLAN

Officials of the Dark Tobacco Planters' Protective association, in McCracken and other counties in the western district are watching with interest the move made by Chairman Usher, of the Graves county committee of the association to raise a fund among farmers from which advances will be made to those who have pledged their crops to the association.

The association officers do not doubt that the success of the managers in raising the prices about two dollars on the hundred over the past year largely depends upon the ability of the leaders to finance the district, and furnish those who need it ready cash.

The present money stringency came as a clap of thunder from a clear sky to the association leaders. During the first two years of the association's existence little difficulty was experienced in getting all the money needed from eastern capitalists, though the association did not have near the acreage pledged as now, and the tobacco controlled was also boycotted by foreign buyers who had announced that they would not buy any tobacco controlled by the association. By obtaining money for their immediate needs the farmers held their tobacco off the market until the foreign buyers were forced to buy at association prices, which were invariably higher than those paid the growers direct by the foreign agents.

The high prices obtained caused many farmers, who acted independently before, to join the association. It was not doubted that the association managers could make good their promises to advance 60 per cent of the valuation, as placed by the priors with the prize house receipt as security. The advance had been made before when less tobacco was pledged than now and when the buyers were in a different attitude toward the association.

Soon after the "books closed" and no more tobacco could be pledged, the financial flurry began, and it was soon apparent that money could not be obtained for a while at least. This disappointment, coupled with the fact that foreign buyers were said to have the gold to pay for their purchases, has caused some farmers, it is reported, to "dump" their tobacco on the market.

Chairman Usher is the first man to offer any way out of the difficulty and if his plan succeeds it may prove a way for the farmers to again win a victory which it is believed will prove them masters of the situation. So far as learned today no move will be made by the other counties until the result of the call from Mr. Usher is known.

NO JAP COOKS

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 13.—According to the report of petty officers on shore leave today, when the fleet pulls out Monday for the Pacific there will not be a Japanese cook or servant on any of the iron clads. The report is to the effect that the Japanese are being quietly but rapidly weeded out by order of commanding officers and their places being filled by negroes. No reason is given for the order.

Gov. Willson Summons Tobacco Men to Conference at Capitol of Kentucky to Settle Difficulties.

Wishes Heads of Trust and of Planters' Societies to Be Present and Says He Will See That All Get Square Deal.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—Governor Willson called a conference between the representatives of the tobacco societies, the American Tobacco company and the independent buyers of the state in the governor's office December 20 and 21, to settle the tobacco war. The governor will insist on prompt action and says he proposes to see that both sides get a square deal. Among the representatives he wishes to attend the conference are Clarence Lebus, president of the Burley Tobacco society; James B. Duke, president of the American Tobacco company; C. M. Barnett, president of the American Society of Equity, and I. H. Fort, president of the Dark Tobacco association, I. B. Wing and others.

Henderson, Ky., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—Warnings of "night riders" were posted on the door of the Imperial warehouses here and on the offices of independent buyers. There was no disorder but all warehouses are guarded.

At Hoptown, Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—Citizens and soldiers were on guard again last night, but there was no trouble.

New Adjutant Starts, Lexington, Ky., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—Major H. P. Johnston, newly appointed adjutant general, left here for Hopkinsville this morning.

Friday, the 13 th., Dark Moon

Today is a "hoodoo day," Friday and the 13th in the dark of the moon, and no doubt the superstitious have refrained from doing anything in the line of new ventures. The day, too, is one of the few bad ones of the season. December, in part, has been as balmy as the latter days of October. Many of the rose bushes have sprouted, as they do in April, and business is suffering on account of the unseasonable weather. Merchants complain it is too warm to move winter goods. The street car company says the days are too invigorating for their usual patrons to ride. "We might as well have it all at once," said an optimist.

GENERAL TREATY IS ANNOUNCED BY CENTRAL AMERICA

Washington, Dec. 13.—The first formal outcome of the Central American peace conference now in progress here and probably the most important to result from that conference was made public today in the form of an abstract of the general treaty agreed upon last night by the delegates, providing for the establishment of a permanent court to settle all disputes that may arise between the countries of Central America in the future. The work of the conference in this respect acquires an importance quite apart from that which attaches to the conservation of peace in Central America for the reason that the arrangement announced today will, if it should work satisfactorily, be adopted as a basis for the creation of a general international court contemplated in declaration of the recent Hague conference.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF ROOSEVELT'S STIRS COMMENT

Washington, Dec. 13.—Both factions of the administration are dazed at Roosevelt's reiteration of not accepting a third term. Friends profess to be delighted. Enemies see material for an attack. Rumors are out today that Taft and Cortelyou will resign from the cabinet. Taft in order to better his campaign; Cortelyou because he has received a "rough deal from the white house," as he is quoted as saying. The Hughes boom is causing most speculation just now. Gossips differ as to the cause of alleged coolness between Roosevelt and Cortelyou. Some say the president sat down on Cortelyou's aspirations. Others assert the president "jumped" on Cortelyou for playing with the Wall Street crowd, and the anti-administration bunch of Republicans in the national committee.

Cortelyou's friends assert that the charge that Cortelyou had said he had received a "damned rough deal from the white house" is a fabrication. They declare Roosevelt approved all he had done in a political way. Friends deny that Cortelyou intends leaving the cabinet.

HON. MARION YOUNGBLOOD, OF CARBONDALE, IS DEAD.

Judge R. T. Lightfoot has received notice of the death of his friend, Judge Marion Youngblood, of Carbondale, Ill. Judge Youngblood has appeared in several important suits at the Paducah bar and was regarded as a fine lawyer. The funeral was held today at Carbondale.

HICKS SCATTERS BAD CHECKS ALONG PATHWAY OF LIFE

The Rev. W. M. Hicks, who, it is said, came from Seminole, Oklahoma, last week to stand trial for forgery at Smithland, is wanted by Paducah officers for obtaining money and goods on checks given on a Seminole, Oklahoma bank, which institution reports that Hicks never had an account with them.

The Rev. Mr. Hicks bought an overcoat from B. Welle & Son, giving them a check for $25 and receiving $10 in cash. He told the salesman that he came here to get married to a young woman in the city. Hicks also bought a pair of shoes at Cochran's shoe store, giving a check for $5 in payment. Both checks were returned "no funds."

The warrants for Hicks' arrest were procured yesterday and sent to Smithland, where, it is believed, Hicks can be found. The officers of the bank on which he gave the checks wrote the Paducah officers that other checks had been given by Hicks at different points in the country, and it is believed that if he is arrested he will have other charges than those preferred here to answer.

Not at Smithland, Smithland, Ky., Dec. 13. (Special.)—The warrants for the arrest of the Rev. W. M. Hicks reached Smithland, but he is not here. He left last week, when his trial was postponed, and went to Paducah. That is the last heard of him.

U. P. CORRESPONDENT

Norfolk, Dec. 13.—Norman Rose, United Press correspondent, arrived today to accompany Admiral Evans' fleet to the Pacific. He will be on the Georgia. Admiral Emory's flagship, and will file cable dispatches to the United Press from all points the fleet touches.

FLEET IS READY

Washington, Dec. 13.—"I have the honor to inform you the battleship fleet is now ready to sail." Such was the notification given in person to the president by Acting Secretary of the Navy Newberry. Roosevelt expressed his pleasure that the orders were carried out so promptly.

SUES PULLMAN COMPANY

Suit was filed today by T. B. Orr against the Pullman Sleeping Car company for $250 damages claimed as a result of the plaintiff being ejected from the car at San Antonio, Tex., though he had secured passage to San Francisco, Cal. The plaintiff alleged that he was forced to make the remainder of the trip in a day coach while he was sick, causing the damages claimed.

ASSASSINATED IS VERDICT IN CASE OF GEORGE GRAY

No Evidence to Show How or When Alleged "Night Rider" Was Killed Night of Raid on Hopkinsville—Inquest Developed Little of Importance.

YOUNG MAN BURIED SUNDAY

Cadiz, Ky., Dec. 13.—The Blue Spring neighborhood, several miles west of here, was the scene of much sorrow last Saturday night and Sunday as a result of the mysterious death of George Gray, the 19-year-old son of Mr. James Gray, one of the most prominent farmers and citizens of that community.

He was carried to his home about midnight last Saturday night by a crowd of masked men, who delivered the body to his father, saying that he had been shot to death from ambush. The men then departed and no further facts as to the death of the boy have been discovered and nothing learned as to who the masked men were, where they came from or where they went.

Young Gray left home late Friday afternoon before, saying that he was going to a singing, but we understand nothing more can be learned as to his whereabouts until he was brought home a corpse.

Esquire D. D. Creekmur, of Canton, was summoned Sunday morning and held an inquest over the dead body, and the jury upon the case returned the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find that the body before us is that of George Gray, and that he came to his death by an assassin, unknown to us."

"JOHN F. GUER, Foreman." Young Gray was one of the most popular, young men of that community and an industrious young farmer.

He was buried Sunday afternoon in the Blue Ridge graveyard in the presence of an unusually large crowd of sorrowing friends and loved ones.

KUROPATKIN SAYS JAPS WERE SLOW TAKING PT. ARTHUR

St. Petersburg, Dec. 13.—General Kuropatkin testified today at the trial by court martial of Lieutenant General Stoessel and other army officers of high rank charged with needlessly surrendering Port Arthur to the Japanese, and what he said made a sensation in the court room. He declared that the Japanese could have taken Port Arthur by assault in the early days of the war. Defenses were then so incomplete, Kuropatkin went on, that the fortress must have failed at the first vigorous attack, but the slowness of the Japanese and the resistance made by the army in the field gave the Russians time to improve the defense works which had withstood the Japanese for months. On the whole Kuropatkin's evidence was favorable to Stoessel. The conduct of General Pock, who is charged with the responsibility for the defeat at Nanchan and subsequent retirement to Port Arthur, also was reviewed by the court, and the evidence of Kuropatkin was helpful to this officer as well.

Kuropatkin said the whole plan of the war was based upon the supposed invincibility of the Russian fleet and that the original scheme for the defense of Port Arthur could not be carried out successfully after the squadron had been crippled by the "treacherous opening attack of the Japanese."

The name of former Viceroy Alexieff, who had declined to appear as a witness was mentioned continually today in an unfavorable light and a ripple of merriment was provoked by a phrase in one of his orders saying the "chief task of Pock is to retreat at the proper time."

Kuropatkin did not conceal his animosity toward the former viceroy and declared Alexieff had forbidden him to visit the fortress before the siege.

MONEY STOLEN FROM HONOLULU MAIL POUCH

Honolulu, Dec. 13.—A registered pouch of United States mail sent on the steamer Kinan on her last voyage to Hilo was opened and $3,000 stolen.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Alice Longworth is reported progressing favorably.

Republican Aldermen Set Fine Example in Non-Partisan Spirit in Caucusing With Democrats.

With Majority of Two on Joint Ballot They Will Give Offices to Minority in Exchange For Scalp of Geo. Lehnhard.

Some Republican members of the board of aldermen are setting the Democrats an example in self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of harmony and unpartisan patriotism, that may be lost, but is beautiful to contemplate from the minority side of the house. With a majority of two on joint ballot and Republican officers up for re-election, they have entered into a deal to give three offices to the Democrats and turn down two Republicans who are seeking re-election to their positions.

President Palmer and Aldermen Hubbard and Chamblin will support Bob Hicks, a Democrat, and one of Tom B. Harrison's most ardent workers at the primary and election, against License Inspector George Lehnhard, who supported James P. Smith for mayor at the convention. They make the point that Lehnhard was elected by the general council to the position, and went back on the aldermen at the convention. Councilman C. C. Duval was proposed as a compromise candidate for the office. He is a Republican, but he entered into a coalition with Democrats, who further exacted from them the offices of sanitary inspector for John Gaither, whom the Republicans say they will get rid of after January 1; and sewer inspector for A. Franke.

While no opposition slate has been framed up, it is said, that some Democrats will vote for Lehnhard, as

THE SLATE.
License Inspector—Bob Hicks (Dem.)
Sewer Inspector—A. Franke, (Dem.)
Sanitary Inspectors—John Gaither (Dem.); T. Barnett (Rep.)
City Physician—Dr. Harry Williamson (Rep.)
City Weigher—Frank Dunn (Rep.)
Market Master—C. E. Bell (Rep.)
Pres. Aldermen—C. H. Chamblin (Rep.)
Pres. Council—H. R. Lindsey (Dem.)

against Bob Hicks, and pressure has been brought to bear on the aldermen by citizens to induce them to change their attitude.

While nothing is told authentically about the ramifications of the non-partisan agreement entered into, it is understood that the parties to it also arranged for the perpetuation of the arrangement throughout the term of the new general council, which comes in next month. Both boards will be evenly divided, but the slate is to elect Alderman C. H. Chamblin, Republican, president of the upper board, and H. R. Lindsey, Democrat, president of the lower board.

They insist that they have twelve votes for the slate, and it is quite certain that all the Republicans will support the Republicans not marked for the slaughter, while Aldermen Miller and Hank will support Mr. Lehnhard.

TWO VERY MYSTERIOUS ROBBERIES TAKE PLACE IN DOWNTOWN BUILDING

Police Have No Clue to Sneak Thief Who Entered Man's Room While He Was Present and Got His Watch.

Two robberies, both mysterious, were pulled off in rooms above Sam Gott's saloon, on North Fourth street, last night, and the police and detectives, who were called in the case, are at a loss to get a clue to the thief.

John Frank, foreman, employed in putting in the concrete foundation for the big coal chute at the Illinois Central shops, was robbed of his watch, while he was awake and standing within a few feet of the dresser, upon which he laid the timepiece, while changing his clothes. The door was open and it is supposed that some one slipped in the room and got the watch while his back was turned. Several dollars in money were lying beside the watch, were not touched.

This morning Wiley Arrington, a farmer of Blandville, discovered when he awoke that his pocketbook containing $45 in money and a check for $58.25 was gone. Mr. Arrington delivered tobacco yesterday and was paid $45 in cash and given a check for $58.25, payable January. Mr. Arrington slept in a room adjoining that one occupied by Frank, who was robbed of his watch. How the thief entered the room is a mystery, as the door was found locked just as he left it when he retired. There is no outside window to the room and the transom is too small for a man to crawl through. The door is fastened with a Yale lock. Arrington was certain he had the pocketbook as he went up the stairway.

BRYAN MAKE ROOM FOR CANDIDATES --JOHN T. GRAVES

New York, Dec. 13.—John Temple Graves, in the New York American, makes suggestion to Bryan that he should follow Roosevelt's example in declaring himself out of the race for president. He contrasts the open fight promised in the Republican convention with the position of the Democrats, who, he thinks, stand predestined to select Bryan. He names a long list of possibilities should Bryan withdraw.

DENVER SELECTED FOR DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION CITY

Louisville Came Close But Lost Out to Golden City, Which Offered One Hundred Thousand and Dollars—Some Discussion About Accepting.

MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE

Washington, Dec. 13.—After deciding to hold the next Democratic national convention at Denver, Col., and fixing the date July 7, 1908, the Democratic national committee late today entered upon a spirited debate on the propriety of accepting more of the $100,000 offered by Denver for the convention than was actually needed to pay the convention expenses in that city. Opposition to the acceptance of the contribution took the form of a resolution by Representative Clayton, of Alabama, declining the money not actually needed for convention purposes, but after a long debate the resolution was laid on the table, 31 to 14.

Governor Hoke Smith, of Georgia, was especially emphatic in saying the $100,000 which had been offered to secure the Republican convention and refused by the Republican national committee had been offered to and was about to be accepted by the Democratic committee. He said the Republicans turned down the offer because it was regarded as in the nature of a bribe and that the Democrats, in view of that circumstance could not afford to accept it.

John Sharp Williams spoke in a similar vein, as also did Clayton. Chairman Taggart advocated the acceptance of the $100,000, saying it would be needed now even worse than money was needed in 1900, and that at that time it would have been practically impossible to have opened headquarters for Judge Parker if they had not had extra money secured from St. Louis, where the convention was held.

Senator Stone, of Missouri, favored the acceptance.

Clayton declared the acceptance of this money would be in line with the very practices in campaign contributions that had been condemned by the committee.

Mayor Tom Johnson advocated the acceptance.

Senator Tillman opposed the acceptance and wanted the Democratic organization of Colorado to have the money to fight their next campaign. Charles F. Wilson, sitting as a proxy for members of the committee from Colorado, assured the committee that Denver had no desire to appear as unduly influencing the committee. He said the offer was made by the business men's league in the same spirit as money had been offered to secure other conventions.

A motion to table Clayton's motion was then made and carried.

On the first ballot for the convention the city of Denver received 22 votes; Louisville, 17; Chicago, 5; St. Paul, 1. Before the second ballot was taken all other cities were withdrawn and the choice of Denver was made by acclamation.

WANTS GRAND JURY

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 13. (Special.)—Fire Marshal Ayres has written to Judge Cooke, asking for a special session of the grand jury to investigate the Hopkinsville raid. He says he is hampered by his inability to summon witnesses from other counties. He thinks he can procure indictments with the evidence in hand.

A LID FASTENER

Provisions in the new license ordinance will make a saloon license forfeitable by the mayor, if a saloon man keeps his saloon open on Sunday or sells liquor in the bar or on any other place. This is designed to cover the weak spot in the old ordinance, which was badly battered in the courts during the trial of the Hugh Boyle case. City Solicitor Campbell is preparing the ordinance.

Board of Police and Fire Commissioners Will Meet Night of December 27.

It is understood that the board of fire and police commissioners will not meet to re-elect officers for the new year until after Christmas. But few changes in the personnel of the members of the fire and police departments are expected, though it is known that there will be some new faces after the first of the year. It is probable that the meeting to elect will be held on the night of December 27.

GRAND OLD QUAKER DEAD.

Isaac Mather of Chelton Hills, Pa., Expires at the Age of One Hundred and One.

Any One Found an Appendix?

Templeton, Mass.—James J. Ransome, who lives in Lamb City, three miles west of Templeton, has been so unfortunate as to lose his vermiform appendix, and has advertised for it thus:

"Lost or Stolen.—One vermiform appendix; reward upon prompt return to owner and no questions asked J. J. Ransome, Lamb City."

It cost Ransome quite a sum to have the appendix removed, and the surgeon did it up in a nice little bottle filled with alcohol.

Ransome isn't sure where he left his appendix unless it could be in Gardner, where he goes every Sunday.

Quinsy, Sore Throat, Neuralgia of the Nerves

MRS. WM. VAN GAASBEK.

A remarkable cure was effected in the case of Mrs. Wm. Van Gaasbeek, of 141 Foxhall Avenue, Kingston, New York, who suffered a long time from Quinsy, Sore Throat and Neuralgia. After all other medicines failed, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey made a permanent cure.

In a recent letter Mrs. Van Gaasbeek wrote:

"I have been a great sufferer for a long time from quinsy sore throat and neuralgia of the nerves. I had tried almost everything but nothing seemed to help me. A friend advised me to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and after taking a half dozen bottles I was cured. Have never had any symptoms of the disease since. I recommend it to any one suffering from these diseases."

Thousands of unsolicited letters of gratitude like this of Mrs. Van Gaasbeek are received from grateful patients who are anxious to extol the merits of this great life-saver—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ of the seed and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a pale malt, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances renders it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is recognized everywhere as the unfailing specific for the cure of consumption, nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run down and weakened conditions of the brain and body. It restores youthful vigor to the old and maintains the health and strength of the young. It nourishes and feeds the vital forces. It is a form of food already digested. It is prescribed by doctors of all schools, is used in the leading hospitals of the world, and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere. It is absolutely pure.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Illustrated medical booklet and doctor's advice free. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

Sure Enough Horse Sense.
Brookhaven, Miss., Dec. 12.—Yesterday a sure enough exhibition of "horse sense" was shown at Dr. George A. Love's veterinary stables. Dr. R. R. Applewhite, ex-sheriff of the county, has a horse named "Old Sorrel," who had been treated by Dr. Love for colic several weeks ago. Yesterday the veterinary noticed "Old Sorrel" standing in front of the stable as if he wanted to be admitted. Remembering that he had once treated the horse for colic, he simply thought he had strayed back and paid no attention to him for a little while, but presently noticed an expression of suffering around "Old Sorrel's" eyes and let him into the stable and examined him. He found that he had a bad case of colic and treated him for it and as soon as the horse was relieved turned him out again. About two hours later he saw Mr. Hugh McLaughlin, who lives with Dr. Applewhite, and found out that the horse had gone straight home, and if Dr. Love had not told him of it none of the family would have known of his absence.

Much that passes for patience is simply laziness.

PRACTICAL CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

For a Man's Christmas

YOU know how difficult it is to pick out the right Christmas presents for a man; even if you ask him, he can't tell you what he wants. There's a way to suit him perfectly; buy his Christmas present in a man's store where men's things are sold; the store where he buys his own stuff when he wants any.

This is the store for it; you'll find us prepared to show you the right things for any man's Christmas; you may be the man yourself.

How would a Roxboro fine overcoat do? Say, at $20, $25; silk lined at $30, $35, $40. Or a Roxboro fine suit? For business, or full dress; make him a present of a full dress suit, if you want something special. You couldn't give a better or more suitable present. It will not only show your good will, but your good sense.

You'll find a great wealth of lesser things here, of course; things men want, need, constantly buy for themselves. Fine neckwear, cuff buttons and scarf pins, gloves, hosiery, handkerchiefs, smoking jackets, bath robes, dressing gowns, fine hats, etc.

If you don't know his size, and you can't find out without "giving yourself away," we'll exchange anything you buy that doesn't fit, for something that does.

You can come pretty near suiting the boy here, too; boys like men's things especially.

TJITJAK

EATS MOSQUITOES AND DESTROYES GARBAGE.

New York Visited By Strange Lizard That Is Native of India—Society Not Pleasant.

New York, Dec. 13.—New York has the tjitjaks although the average person here if confronted with the statement would probably indignantly deny it as a blot on the reputation of the city. But the tjitjak is here nevertheless, and while he is not liable to last long Father Knickerbocker may find some consolation in the fact that never before has he visited the United States. The strange visitor is not so formidable as his name might indicate, being a lizard native to India, where he works hard as a scavenger and a consumer of mosquitoes. Great care is always taken, however, by vessels loading there to exclude him from the cargo, as his society is not pleasant away from his native haunts, even though he can outdo the chameleon in changing colors. Just how the tjitjaks got aboard the vessel which brought them to New York is unknown, but get aboard they did in large numbers. Many were destroyed by the crew in the war of extermination which they waged. There were enough left, however, when the vessel docked here to cause a small riot on the part of the long shore population in their efforts to secure the strange lizards whose name they could not pronounce. New Jersey hotel men, it is rumored, are going to investigate the mosquito eating propensities of the tjitjak with the idea of making practical use of him if he does not come in the "nature fake" class.

The Blood of Our Presidents.

Despite the fact that we are the most amalgamated nation on earth, but two of the twenty-five men who have served this country as president came from other than British ancestry. Having occasion a few days since to go over a list of the presidents, it occurred to me that it would be of interest to see whence our ex-presidents came. I find that all but two—Van Buren and Roosevelt, who came from the Dutch—were of British ancestry.

These twenty-three from the British are divided up into Scotch-Irish, Scotch, Welsh and English. From the Scotch-Irish came Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Arthur and McKinley; from the Scotch came Monroe, Grant and Hayes, and from the Welsh came Jefferson. All the rest came from the English, pure and simple. German, French, Italian, Polish, Russian and Scandinavian blood have not yet mingled in the veins of our presidents, and probably will not for some time. —Pathfinder.

Legless Beggar Gets Warm Place and Christmas Dinner for His Persistence.

Joseph Stanley, colored, was held to answer in police court this morning on the charge of stealing a revolver from Ike Cohen, a Second street merchant. Stanley is said to have attempted to use the gun yesterday evening, which caused his arrest on a disorderly conduct charge. After his arrest it developed that the pistol was stolen.

John Marshall was fined $10 and costs for being drunk and disorderly.

John Jacobs and Ed Farris were fined $4 each for being drunk.

Harry Wilson, a legless beggar, was sentenced to 30 days in jail for disorderly conduct. Wilson persists in begging on the streets, though he has been repeatedly warned to leave the city.

American League.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—The annual meeting of the American League of Professional Base Ball clubs ended today with the re-election of all the old officers. The league's representatives on the joint committee with the National league are:

Schedule—President B. B. Johnson, R. L. Hedges, John I. Taylor, of Boston.

Rules—C. A. Comiskey, of Chicago; Connie Mack, of Philadelphia; Clark Griffith, of New York.

A rule was adopted restricting the practice of securing a player by refusing waiver on him and then turning him over to the club outside of the league. Hereafter when such a waiver is refused the player reverts to the club which originally owned him.

The Nellie took a raft to Joppa this morning.

The Chattanooga got in from the upper Tennessee with a fair trip aboard. She went on to Joppa today but will return and leave for Chattanooga tomorrow evening.

The Lulu E. Warren will be let off the dry docks tomorrow, after having been repaired, two barges belonging to the Ayer-Lord Tie company will be taken on in the Warren's place.

The John S. Hopkins was due to leave for Evansville last night but did not get away till this morning on account of a great deal of unloading and loading that was done.

The Dick Fowler had a good trip aboard for Cairo this morning.

The Kentucky got in from the Tennessee last night.

The Chancy Lamb passed down the river to Joppa with a tow of ties from the Cumberland.

The Lee line steamers will resume their runs between Memphis and Cincinnati and way landings about January 1.

TOWN DEPOPULATED.

Half of Residents Leave Town After Triple Killing.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Dec. 13.—Practically half the population of Ohio, south of Pine Bluff, on the Cotton Belt, has left for various points in Arkansas and Louisiana. This is due to the trouble following the triple killings there several weeks ago and follows the indictments by the Geleva land county grand jury, in which Bert McCartney and other Ohio people are accused of having committed the murders.

RAILROAD NOTES

Superintendent A. H. Egan, of the Louisville division of the Illinois Central, is in the city today.

Fireman T. M. McCana, of the run between Paducah and Cairo, is taking a few days lay off this week.

Engineer Lee Eaker has returned to his regular run between Paducah and Memphis. Mr. Eaker has been in the hospital several weeks as the result of injuries sustained by jumping from his engine in the Memphis yards when the locomotive collided with a freight train.

The pay car probably will not reach Paducah until in the afternoon Saturday, as it begins paying at Mounds in the morning at 6:30 and makes the last stop for the day in Paducah. Monday the car will begin paying between Paducah and Memphis, leaving Paducah at 6:30 in the morning.

J. M. Dunn, bridge foreman of the Cairo division of the Illinois Central, has resigned and will go to Memphis to assume the same position with the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley January 1st.

He Got the Job.

One of the contractors in Panama was much annoyed by the exceeding laziness of the sixty native workmen under him. He resolved to try to make them ashamed of their indolence, as one day he lined them up and said:

"Now, I've got a nice, easy job for the laziest man in this company. Will the laziest man please step forward."

Fifty-nine of them stepped forward. The contractor turned to the other, who stood still, looking almost too indolent to stand, and said:

"Why didn't you come forward with the others?"

And the answer came in a weary voice: "I'm too lazy."—Judge's Library.

Daily Thought.

The doctrines are but highways
that lead to Him.—Moody.

THE MEANING OF IT.

The whole country will await with unabating interest the story involved in Roosevelt's final announcement that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself under any circumstances. The statement is without equivocation or qualification. Indeed, nobody scanned the words of the president in search of a double meaning. Frankness and honesty of expression are his characteristics.

Some time before congress convened Senator Aldrich and others called on President Roosevelt, ostensibly concerning his candidacy for a third term. They left the white house with expressions of satisfaction on their lips. Then the New York Sun and the New York Times modified their severe attitude toward the administration. Meantime considerable was heard about the Cortelyou boom, in connection with the movement to force the third term on Roosevelt.

Indications point to a realization
on the part of Aldrich and others that Roosevelt's personal popularity is a factor in the coming struggle for the Republican nomination, that they must reckon with; and that, if Taft or some other equally good man, thoroughly in sympathy with the administration, is knifed, Roosevelt himself will be forced into the arena
in defense of his policies.

We have all along contended that Roosevelt's enemies would drive him to accepting the nomination, and we took the ground that the continuance of his policies is of more consequence than observance of the two term precedent.

We also have believed that Roosevelt does not desire a third term, having enjoyed all the honors that can come to an American citizen, and seeing nothing in another term but a continuation of the troubles and labors of the office.

We are inclined to believe Roosevelt has won a great political victory for the people. We shall wait and see.

At all events he has cleared the political atmosphere at Washington, and we may look for harmony between congress and the administration at this session.

INTERURBAN LINES.

The Evansville (Ind.) Courier contains the following article, concerning interurban traction lines and their relation to Evansville and surrounding towns, which will be of interest to west Kentuckians:

"Traction lines are one of the sources of Evansville's increasing supremacy in the retail merchandising lines. As the metropolis of the tri-state this city's position has been further enhanced in many ways by the four electric roads which bring it into close neighborhood lines with some of the most productive parts of the pocket.

"Evansville merchants are not slow to recognize the great advantages that accrue from traction lines, or the fact that they bring a new custom to this city, which under former conditions, was lost altogether. With larger patronage the merchants have been enabled to build up larger business and get greater variety to lease

all classes of people. The benefit, then, is not reflected to the individual districts along the traction lines.

"It is not to be understood that the benefit is Evansville's alone. In the days when electric lines and rapid communication hourly from smaller cities to a larger central city were hardly more than a prospect, opposition was strong in the smaller places.
It was urged that such communication would deprive the small city merchant of a great part of his custom.

It was natural that such a view should be taken, but the developments have been far from realizing the fears of these opponents, brought to pass a condition the very opposite of what they expected. It may be true, as was then set out, that smaller city merchants would lose something of their own trade. But for all they have lost they have gained just as much from other quarters, and in almost every instance have regained more. Evansville has had new avenues of trade opened to her;
so have the smaller cities.

"J. R. Duncan, of the Boston Store, declares he has heard a number of merchants in the smaller cities say they would not give up the traction lines even if they do carry a number of patrons away from their own towns. These merchants receive from the surrounding country more than enough patronage to offset anything they may lose by the people that come to Evansville. Farmers, instead of driving into Evansville and making a whole day's purchasing trip, will, whenever they are nearer to the smaller cities, go there and buy. Their trade is practically a new gain for the small city's merchants.
Before traction lines were built these same people had to come to Evansville. Now the farmer goes to town three or four times a week, and as a result buys more than he bought before. The volume of the small city man's trade is not diminished but is increased. The traction lines have worked just as much benefit for the small city as they have for the large one."

THE ANTI-SPITTING ORDINANCE.

Decency is merely a matter of education, says the Courier-Journal.
It is just as difficult to convince residents of Crazy Horse Gulch or Red Dog that it is inelegant to expecto-rate upon a red-hot stove, in a contemplative mood, or to spit at a crack in the floor to indulge the primitive instinct for speculation, as it is to convince many citizens of a large city that spitting upon the sidewalks and in the corridors of public buildings is an offense against decency and the law which should be punished. The new city administration announced, among other things commendable, its determination to enforce the ordinances looking to the abatement of this nuisance. As yet efforts in this direction have not been vigorous or productive of results.

This ordinance was passed some time ago. It has been utterly disregarded by the public and by a majority of the police. The spectacle of a crowd of men defiling the lobby of a theater between acts, in the presence of the policeman detailed to keep order there, is a common one.
It was announced during the Barth administration that the board of public safety had given the policemen strict instructions to make arrests.
A few arrests were made, but for the most part violations went unrebuked.
The average policeman is a sufficiently intelligent individual to keep an eye peeled in the direction of what, in curb vernacular, is called
"the main choice." If he feels that there is any probability that his failure to do his duty will cost him his place upon the force, he awakens at once to the necessity for action.
From the inactivity of the policeman,
under the old administration, in regard to the anti-spitting ordinance, it was plain to any observer that instructions upon the point had been perfunctory and that the importance of making arrests had not been fully impressed upon them.

Physicians who are interested in the tuberculosis problem have striven for years to get attention centered upon the gravity of the results of allowing persons to expectorate in public places. Everyone has the right to demand of the board of public safety and the police protection from possible infection, but even if the habit of spitting upon the sidewalks and elsewhere were as harmless to health as forecasting the weather, there would be no reason why the police should not be compelled to abate the nuisance. Nothing is more practicable than the enforcement of the ordinance. A few arrests and the infliction of the penalties provided at once calls the attention of everyone to the importance of obeying the ordinance. In order to get permanent results, it is only necessary for the police to continue watchfulness
and continue to make arrests.

In cities where conscientious effort to enforce the anti-spitting ordinance has been made, men of all classes have become sufficiently enlightened
not only to obey it without coercion,
but to appreciate its benefits to public health, and to be thankful for its enforcement for the sake of decency.

BLINDFOLDED

A Mystery Story
of San Francisco

BY

EARLE ASHLEY WALCOTT

(Copyright 1906, the Robt-Merrill Co.)

"I'll be damned first!" he cried, and seizing a chair he whirled around, dashed it through a window and leaped through the jagged panes before I could spring forward to stop him.

"Round in front, men!" I cried, motioning my followers to sally through the door. "Bring him back!" And an instant later I leaped through the window after the flying enemy.

There was a fall of six feet, and as I landed on a pile of broken glass, a bit shaken, with the rain beating on my head, it was a few seconds before I recovered my wits. When I looked no one was in sight. I heard the men running on the porch of the hotel,
so the enemy was not to be sought that way. I set off full speed for the other corner, fifty yards away, half suspecting an ambush. But at the turn I stopped. The rain-soaked street was empty for block before me.

"Where is he?" cried Porter, the first of my men to reach my side.

I shrugged my shoulders. "I haven't seen him."

"He didn't come our way—that I'll swear," panted Fitzhugh.

"He was out of sight before I got my feet," said I. They must have a hiding-place close by."

"He must have jumped the fence here," said Wilson, pointing to a cottage just beyond the hotel's back yard.
"I'll see about it." And he vaulted the pickets and looked about the place.

He was back in a minute with a shake of the head.

"Well, it's no great matter," I said.
"We can get along without another guest for the afternoon. Now get under cover, boys, or you'll be soaked through."

"Well, I reckon he wouldn't have been very pleasant company if you'd got him," said one of the men consolingly, when we had told our tale of the search for a guest.

"I suspect he would be less disagreeable in here than out with his gang," I returned dryly, and turned the subject. I did not care to discuss my plan to get a hostage now that it had failed.

The gray day flashed slowly toward night. The rain fell by fits and starts. As the time wore on I suspected that my men grew uneasy, wondering what we were there for,
and why I did not make some move.
Then I reflected that this could not be.
It was I who was wondering. Had the plans of the Unknown come to disappear through the difficulty of getting the telegraph on Sunday? The office here was closed. The Unknown, being a woman, I ungallantly reflected,
would have neglected to take so small a circumstance into consideration, and she might even now be besieging the telegraph office in San Francisco in a vain effort to get word to Livermore.

On this thought I bestirred myself,
and after much trouble and speech with the young man who combined in his person the offices of telegraph operator, station master, ticket seller, freight agent and baggage handler for the place. He objected to opening the office "out of office hours."

"There might be inducements discovered that would make it worth my while, I suppose," I said, jingling some loose silver carelessly in my pocket.

He smiled.

"Well, I don't care if I do," he replied. "Whatever you think is fair."

of course." It was more than I thought fair, but the agent thawed into friendship at once and expressed his readiness to "call San Francisco" till he got an answer if it took till dark.

I might have saved my trouble and my coin. San Francisco replied with some emphasis that there was nothing for me, and never had been, and who was I, anyhow?

There was nothing to be done. I must possess my soul in patience in the belief that the Unknown knew what she was about and that I should get my orders in due time—probably after nightfall, when darkness would cover any necessary movement.

If the mission of to-day were prolonged into the morrow, what was to become of the Omega deal, and where would Doddridge Knapp's plans of fortune be found? I smiled to think that I should concern myself with this question when I knew that Doddridge Knapp's men were waiting and watching for my first movement with orders that probably did not stop at murder itself. Yet my trouble of mind increased with the passing time as I vainly endeavored to devise some plan to meet the difficulty that had been made for me.

As darkness came on, the apprehensions of danger which had made no impression on me by daylight, began to settle strongly on my spirits. I concealed my fears and depressions from the men, and with the lighting of the lamps made my dispositions to meet any attack that might come. I had satisfied myself that the rear bedroom, that faced the south, could not be entered from the outside without the aid of ladders. The parlor showed a sheer drop to the street on the west and I felt assured we were safe on that side. But the front windows of the parlor, and the front bedroom which joined it, opened on the veranda roof in common with a dozen other rooms. Inside, the hallway, perhaps eight feet wide and 25 feet long, offered the only approach to our rooms from the stairs. The situation was not good for defense, and at the thought I had a mind even then to seek other quarters.

It was too late for such a move,
however, and I decided to make the best of the position. I placed the boy in the south bedroom, which could be reached only through the parlor.
With him I placed Walwright and Fitzhugh, the two strongest men of the party. The north bedroom, opening on the hallway, the veranda roof and the parlor, looked to be the weakest part of my position, but I thought it might be used to advantage as a post of observation. The windows were guarded with shutters of no great strength. We closed and secured those of the parlor and the inner bedroom as well as possible. Those of the north bedroom I left open. By leaving the room dark it would be easy for a sentinel to get warning of an assault by way of the veranda roof. I stationed Porter in the hall and Abrams in the dark bedroom, while Lockhart, Wilson, Brown and I held the parlor and made ourselves comfortable until the time should come to relieve the men on guard.

I thrust open the door to the bedroom to see that the boy and his guards were safe, and this done I turned down the light, threw myself on the floor before the door that protected my charge and mused over the strange events that had crowded so swiftly upon me.

Subtle warnings of danger floated over my sense between sleeping and waking, and each time I dropped into a doze I awoke with a start to see only the dimly-lighted forms of my men before me, and to hear only the sweep and whistle of the wind outside and the dash of water against the shutters. Thrice I had been aroused thus, when, on the borderland between dreams and waking, a voice reached my ear.

"S-s! What was that?"

I sprang up, wide-awake, revolver in hand. It was Lockhart who spoke.

We all strained our ears to listen.

GRAND LEADER
FURNISHERS & CLOTHIERS
323 Broadway

There was nothing to be heard but the moan of the wind and the dash of water.

"What was it?" I whispered.

"I don't know."

"I heard nothing."

"It was a coo-hoo—like the call of an owl, but—"

"But you thought it was a man?"

Lockhart nodded. Brown and Wilson had not heard it.

"Was it inside or outside?"

"It was out here, I thought," said Lockhart dubiously, pointing to the street that ran by the side of the hotel.

"I opened the door to the dark bedroom in which Abrams kept watch. It swung noiselessly to my cautious touch. For a moment I could see nothing of my benchman, but the window was open. Then, in the obscurity
I thought I discovered his body lying half-way across the window-sill. I waited for him to finish his observations on the weather, but as he made no move I was struck with the fear that he had met foul play and touched him lightly.

In a flash he had turned on me and I felt the muzzle of a revolver pressing against my side.
"If you wouldn't mind turning that gun the other way, it would suit me
just as well," I said.

"Oh, it's you, is it?" said Abrams with a gulp. "I thought Darby Meeker and his gang was at my back, sure."
"Did you hear anything?" I asked.

"Yes; there was a call out here a bit ago. And there's half a dozen men men or more out there now—right at the corner."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes; I was listening to 'em when you give me such a start."

"What were they saying?"

"I couldn't hear a word."

"Give warning at the first move to get into the house. Blaze away with your gun if anybody tries to climb on to the porch."

Porter had heard nothing, but was wide awake, watching by the light of the lamp that hung at the head of the stairway. And after a caution to vigilance I returned to my chair.

For half an hour I listened, closely.
The men were open-eyed but silent.
The storm kept up its mournful murmur, but no sound that I could attribute to man came to my straining ears.

Suddenly there was a cry from the hall.

"Who's there?" It was Porter's voice.

An instant later there was a crash of glass, an explosion seemed to shake the house, and there was a rush of many feet.

I leaped to the door and flung it open. Lockhart, Wilson and Brown crowding close behind me. A body of men filled the hallway, and Porter was struggling in the hands of three ruffians. His revolver, whose shot we had heard, had been knocked from his hand and lay on the floor.

The sudden appearance of four more weapons in the open doorway startled
the enemy into pausing for a moment.
I sprang forward and gave the nearest of Porter's assailants a blow that sent him staggering into the midst of his band, and with a wrench Porter tore himself loose from the other two and was with us again.

"What does this mean?" I cried angrily to the invaders. "What are you here for?"

There were perhaps a dozen of them altogether and in the midst of the band I saw the evil face and snake-eyes of Tom Terrill. At the sight of his repulsive features I could scarce refrain from sending a bullet in his direction.

Darby Meeker growled an answer.

"You know what we're here for."
"You have broken into a respectable house like a band of robbers," I cried. "What do you want?"
"You know what we want, Mr. Wilson," was the surly answer. "Give us the boy and we won't touch you."
"And if not?"

There was silence for a few moments.
"What are you waiting for?" growled
a voice from beyond the turn of the hall.

At the sound I thrilled to the inmost fiber. Was it not the growl of the Wolf? Could I be mistaken in those tones? I listened eagerly for another word that might put it beyond doubt.
"Well, are you going to give him up?" asked the hoarse voice of Meeker.

"There has got to be some better reason for it than your demand."

"Well, we've got reasons enough here. Stand ready, boys."

"Look out!" I said to my men, with a glance behind.

At I turned I saw without noting it that Walwright and Fitzhugh had come out of the boy's room to take a hand in the impending trouble. Lockhart and Wilson slipped in front of me.

"Get back and look after the boy," whispered the former. "We can hold
'em here."

"Move ahead there!" shouted a ferocious voice that again thrilled the ear and heart with the growl of the Wolf.
"What are you afraid of?"

"Stand fast, boys," I said to my men. "Walwright, keep close to the bedroom." Then I shouted defiance to the enemy. "The first man that moves forward gets killed! There are eight revolvers here."

Then I saw that Walwright had come forward, despite my bidding, eager to take his share of the onslaught. And by some freak of the spirit of the perverse the boy, who had shown himself so timid during the day, had now slipped out of his room and climbed upon a chair to see what the excitement was about, as though danger and death were the last things in the world with which he had to reckon.

I caught a glimpse of his form out of the tail of my eye as he mounted the chair in his night dress. I turned with an exclamation to Walwright and was leaping to cover him from a possible bullet, when there was a roar of rage and the voice of Terrill rang through the hall:

"Tricked again!" he cried with a dreadful oath. "It's the wrong boy!"

MAYFIELD.

A deer, its head crowned with magnificent branching antlers, is roaming around at its will in this county. The animal was first reported by Mr. James Coulter, who was returning to this city from attending a farm sale about five miles north of town. The deer crossed the road, leaping over fences and ditches, just ahead of him. The news was spread and men and dogs got in the phase a few minutes after. The place where the deer was first seen is about four miles north of this city and as the fleet animal was headed for the Mississippi river, it is thought that there is little probability of its being run down before it reaches the Obion river bottoms. The animal is supposed to be one of the herd which was loosed from the Belle Meade stock farm, a short distance from Nashville, Tenn., some time ago.

The animal probably came up the Cumberland river from that country.

A report which has very general circulation all over this city Thursday morning had it that the firm of Gardner & White, buyers of the Re-gie Tobacco company, had been notified by some one signing themselves,
"Night Rider," not to receive any independent tobacco or to buy any tobacco at any time on penalty of having their warehouse burned, was absolutely without foundation. Mr.
Walker, when interviewed relative to the report, said:

"Please state for us that there is not a bit of truth in the report. We have never been molested by anyone, night rider or otherwise, and we do not believe that the men who are committing the depredations in the central part of the state will attempt to come this far from home and we have too much respect for the Graves county farmer to even think that he would be guilty of such a thing. We believe Graves county will be free from such acts

CARNIVAL MASK

AT SKATING RINK NIGHT OF DECEMBER 27.

One of the Most Interesting Events of Season and Elaborate Costume Affair.

One of the most interesting events of the season will be the fancy dress mask carnival at the Auditorium rink Friday night, December 27. The main objection to mask affairs is the attendance of undesirable parties, but the management of the Auditorium has evolved a scheme that will eliminate this. Only 500 tickets will be sold to maskers. The immense skate floor will accommodate many more skaters. The management does not desire to have the floor too crowded. Tickets can only be bought from the manager, who reserves the right to refuse to sell to any person, and in no case more than one ticket will be sold to any one person. Each purchaser must sign an iron clad agreement on back of ticket which specifies that the purchaser will not dispose of the ticket, will abide by all the rules and regulations of the rink and in case of loss of ticket notify manager. No tickets will be sold to maskers after noon of the 27th. No person unmasked or out of costume will be admitted to skate floor. Of course, spectators can buy admittance tickets at box office that evening. Masks on sale at manager's office.

CAN'T AGREE ABOUT INSURANCE AMOUNT

Three suits were filed this morning by W. J. Whitehead, etc., against the fire insurance companies, which held policies on the fixtures of the restaurant at 215 Broadway, which were ruined by fire November 1. Two of the suits, amounting to $800, are against the Ohio German Insurance company, while one suit is against the Southern Fire Insurance company for $800. The suits are the result of the insurance adjusters and the owners of the building failing to agree as to the amount of loss sustained.

BOY BITTEN BY HOG

Cadiz, Ky., Dec. 13.—Lee Mashburn, son of J. H. Mashburn, who resides in the country a few miles north of Cadiz, was knocked down and seriously bitten by a mad hog, which he was driving along the highway. The animal weighed 400 pounds and turned on the boy so suddenly he had no chance to escape. It tore his clothing to shreds with its tusks and he seized it by the mouth with his hand, sustaining terrible lacerations, but managing to get on his feet and escape to a fence.

EDITORIAL COMMENT ON ACTION
New York Papers Discuss President's Repeated Announcement.

New York, Dec. 13.—Editorial comment by local newspapers on President Roosevelt's announcement that he will not be a candidate is as follows:

Herald: Issuance of the call of the Republican national convention affords President Roosevelt an opportunity to again declare that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself. Those who from the first have had full faith in the sincerity of Mr. Roosevelt's declaration that he would not accept a nomination will now say, "Why, of course." On the other hand, those who have argued that he could not decline if the convention would overwhelmingly demand him as a candidate will remark, "We shall see." And there you are.

Times: Mr. Roosevelt's statement that he has not changed, and will not change, the decision announced by him on the night after his first election to the presidency; that the "wise custom" which limits the president to two terms "regards the substance and not the form," and that he would under no circumstances "be a candidate for," or "accept" another nomination is what those who respect him most and knew him best expected him to make. No different statement was possible.

World: President Roosevelt again formally announces that he will not accept another nomination. He declares that he has not changed and will not change the decision announced the night after the 1904 election. So far as words go, President Roosevelt could not take a more positive stand. Widespread doubt has prevailed as to his real intentions. The political activity of close friends has helped to accelerate the movement to re-elect him. At this late day can he stop it? Can he turn back the tide? Suppose the Roosevelt shouters, as Governor Hoch, of Kansas, has threatened, ride over the convention like a herd of Texas steers. Will he still decline? Will he be able to decline?

ALESHIRE TO GET PROMOTION.

Senator Hopkins Withdraws Objection to Officer's Advancement.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Senator Hopkins has withdrawn opposition to the confirmation of the nomination of Brig. Gen. J. B. Aleshire to be quartermaster general of the army.

At the request of Mr. Hopkins, Senator Culom asked the senate military committee a few days ago not to act upon this nomination until his colleague had had an opportunity to investigate certain charges which had been brought to his attention.

It appears that one of Mr. Hopkins' friends had alleged that General Aleshire had shown discrimination in connection with the purchase of horses for the army in St. Louis. Senator Hopkins is satisfied that Gen. Aleshire acted for the best interests of the government. In view of the withdrawal of the opposition the nomination will be confirmed.

Will Enforce Law in Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 13.—Attorney General H. W. Byers today notified the county attorneys in every county in Iowa that he will insist on a strict enforcement of the Martin amendment to the prohibition law. His orders refers to those cities and towns in Iowa which do not live up to the closing provision of the law, and particularly to communities on the Mississippi river.

War on Fat Injures Empress.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 13.—Empress Alexandra, who for a considerable time has been suffering from influenza, was stricken with a high fever today. The empress recently called in a specialist and submitted to a severe regimen to reduce her weight. Her present affliction is ascribed to this cause.

Will Go to Asylum.

H. K. McKendrick, an attendant at the Hopkinsville asylum, arrived today to accompany Henry Clay Love to that institution. The burns on Love's face and hands have begun to heal and his mind seems to have cleared up to some extent during the last few days.

Submits Nomination.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The president sent to the senate the following nomination:

To be United States attorney for the Eastern district of Louisiana, Rufus E. Foster, of Louisiana.

Confessed Slayer Hanged.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Richard Walton, a negro, confessed slayer of Mrs. Lillian White Grant, was hanged today in jail.

LOOTING OF INDIANS PROVED?

Subcommittee of Senate Body Finds Series of Alleged Shady Acts.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—The subcommittee of the senate committee of Indian affairs, consisting of Senators Teller, Curtis and La Follette, which investigated the alleged fraudulent purchases of Kickapoo Indian lands located in Oklahoma, met today and practically agreed upon the report to be submitted to the senate.

The report will disclose a startling series of alleged shady transactions that went on near the Mexican border, where a number of the Kickapoos were living when the law was passed, allowing them to dispose of their lands in Oklahoma, and where some of them were taken by white men.

The report will mention names, and charge that there were obtained through fraudulent practices, at an expenditure of not more than $20,000, lands aggregating in value $250,000.

Kaiser Ends English Visit.

London, Dec. 13.—Announcing great benefit from his month's "rest cure" at Highcliffe castle, Emperor William left London tonight on his return home. He will visit Queen Wilhelmina Holland en route.

In many conversations Emperor William dilated upon the necessity of friendship between Germany and Great Britain.

"We cannot afford to quarrel," he said, and added, "I hope I made it clear that my feeling toward England is one of affection. I hope I shall be able to come here year after year, and be a welcome visitor."

USE
COUPON BOND
for Letters
that Count

One year or fifty years from now, your Letters in other people's files will look as well as the day they were received if they are written on

COUPON BOND

COUPON BOND betters by age, because it is made slowly. You cannot hasten the process of paper making and get as good a paper as by the old slow method. You have to build a sheet of paper. That is why a blind man could tell a sheet of Coupon Bond in a room of other papers. The "feel" would tell him the character of the paper. Its strength and surface would tell the story of slow, careful manufacture.

The Passing of a King.

All the world will regret the death of Sweden's king, Oscar II. Oscar has been not alone the friend of his people, but the friend of humanity wherever it may dwell. Not many monarchs have left a more stainless record of both personal and political career, few have realized more fully the ideal of a Christian gentleman; and his kindly deeds, not less than his words, have stood during a generation for peace in Europe. It was Oscar the man and not Oscar the monarch who kept the chafing Norwegians bound to the throne of Sweden for so many years, until patriotism compelled them to take the steps toward dissolution of the union which love for the old king had held in check.

As the son of an alien soldier placed on Sweden's throne by political forces virtually outside of the kingdom, Oscar II's seat was by no means so soft as it looked. But the king, by nature a man of peace and a scholar rather than a man of action, governed his people with a wise and gentle hand; he guided rather than drove them, and by his skill and sagacity steered them clear of all broils and dissensions. From the first Norway was an unwilling sister in the Svensk family. Her people, brave, freedom-loving, and more versatile than the dominant Swedes, constantly fretted under the yoke of monarchical conjunction and felt keenly their secondary position. They wanted a king of their own, and independence in name as well as fact. More than once it required only the slip of an unskilled hand to have set the two kingdoms adrift with civil strife. But Oscar's hand never slipped, and in a little time he had gained such a hold upon the affections of the Norwegians that the constantly smoldering revolution did not burst into flame for many years—not until it became absolutely essential to Norway's national entity.

When at last, in 1905, disruption did come and the old king was notified of Norway's declaration of independence he burst into tears. Not the tears of weakness nor of rage and disappointment that any of his kingly ambitions had been thwarted—Oscar was never a man ambitious of power—but tears of sorrow because he thought his love for Norway had not been understood and returned by her. The more beligerent advisers of the king wished to send armies against Norway and force her to stay in the alliance, but Oscar would not hear to it. "With God's help I have done my best for them," he said. "If they can do better, let them go their own way." So the union which had held since 1814 was broken, but it was the finest tribute possible to the old monarch that the Norwegians chose Haakon to be their ruler, for the sole reason that he was his father's son.

Oscar has always been distinguished as being one of the most cultured men in Europe. A man of letters, a poet, linguist, and student of the arts, he has been the leading patron of genius in his kingdom, and it was under his benign influence that such Scandinavians as Bjornson, Grieg and Ibsen were developed for the good and pleasure of mankind. So the passing of King Oscar II. is not the sorrow of Scandia alone; all the world has lost a friend.—Washington Post.

Attending to Business.

"You say the officer arrested you while you were quietly minding your own business?"

"Yes, Your Worship. He caught me suddenly by the coat collar and threatened to strike me with his truncheon unless I accompanied him to the prison."

"You were quietly attending to your business; making no noise or disturbance of any kind?"

"None whatever."

"It seems very strange. What is your business?"

"He's a burglar, Your Worship," said the constable.—London Globe.

RAILROAD

COMMISSIONERS' ANNUAL REPORT RECEIVED.

Increase in Mileage in Kentucky is Gratifying to the Members of Board.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 13.—Before the new railroad commission organized the annual report prepared by Chairman McChord was submitted. It is as follows:

To the Hon. J. C. W. Beckham, Governor of Kentucky: During the past year most of the time of the commission has been taken up in the preparation of its defense to the injunction proceedings, the analysis of the testimony of the railroad officials relating to the earnings and general operation of these railroads, and the effort to ascertain the values and legitimate capitalization of each. These actions are still pending before the special master, and every effort is being made to hasten a final determination of the questions involved in the several cases.

The commission has received and investigated a large number of minor complaints during the year, and in nearly every instance has been able to effect an adjustment without the necessity of a formal hearing. Various parts of the state have been visited by the several members of the commission in the inspection of railroad property and in the investigation of such complaints as have been filed.

As shown in our last annual report, the mileage of all steam and electric interurban railroads being operated in the state of Kentucky under the jurisdiction of this commission was 3,445,927 miles. At the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1907, this mileage had increased 60,917 miles, making the total mileage reported for assessment for the purpose of taxation on that date 3,514,944 miles.

Increase in Mileage.

In view of the great depression in the financial matters, it is gratifying to be able to report that there has been an increase in mileage in Kentucky; and, as all the railroads in the state are in a healthy condition, and as the reports show there has been no diminution in volume of traffic, there is no reason why an increase of mileage may not be expected during the next fiscal year.

The close of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1907, shows that the railroads in Kentucky have been more prosperous than ever before. In almost every case there is shown an increase in the volume of business, and the gross receipts of the several railroads have been proportionately greater.

The reports to the commission show that large amounts have been expended for betterments. New and heavier rails have replaced old ones; new steel bridges have taken the place of wooden structures. Many old depots have been repaired and additions made thereto, and in a great many instances new ones have been constructed, in addition to which quite a number of new depots are in process of construction.

The commission has given considerable attention to the matter of improvements necessary at passenger stations. Many of these have been visited and personal inspections made, and in nearly every instance where the commission has deemed it proper that new depots be constructed or additions made, the suggestions have been acted upon by the railroads.

The United States and Japan.

The whole world seems to be interested in the relations that exist or that may exist between the United States and Japan. Some are interested because they would like to see trouble between the two countries. Russia is perhaps one of these, having failed to overcome and subdue Japan herself. Russia would like to see some other country try it so that it might be seen how such a contest would come out.

Ambassador Bryce has been called to England, and the reason given is that he is expected to explain his views of the relations between the two countries mentioned. Why Great Britain should take such interest in this matter is not for us to say; we do not know; but it shows that John Bull wants to know.

It is doubtless a fact that there are a good many people in the world who would like to see the United States and Japan lock horns. They are willing to do whatever may be in their power to stir up bad blood between the two countries. These would have trouble made out of the immigration question. Japan believes she should stand in the same relation to this country in the matter of immigration as Great Britain and Germany. They say over in Japan if any of the people of the island want to come to the United States they should be left free to come, as the English and Germans are. They claim they ought to be placed in the list of "the most favored nations."

ed nation," and may demand it.

Again, there are those who would have Japan believe that the United States is ready to play China against Japan, and it is said by some that in sending the fleet of war vessels to the Pacific, the purpose is to give encouragement, and to stiffen China's backbone, so that she will stand up against Japan.

There is nothing in this, except that it goes to show busy some are in their efforts to get up trouble between this country and Japan. But they will fail. Japan has made wonderful progress in the past twenty-five years, and among other things has learned that there is such a thing as honesty and truth in the diplomacy between nations.—Knoxville Journal and Tribune.

Grim Humor.

"I never do have any luck. Now a raging toothache has begun just at the moment that I was going to take my life, and the nearest dentist lives at least three leagues from here."—Pele Mele.

Early Shopping.

Of course it's trite—as trite as the mother-in-law joke—but the fact remains that the Christmas shopper must be reminded to shop early.

The fact that this reminder has to be made every year does not weaken the importance of the act itself, and it is earnestly hoped that the people of Atlanta will take advantage of the present week to do as much of their shopping as possible.

In the first place, it is entirely to the interest of the customer himself—or more properly "herself," perhaps. The customer has the advantage of choosing from a stock which has not been exhausted by the frequent handling incidental to trade, and naturally has greater leisure in which to make selections. The more discriminating and fastidious the taste of the purchaser the more time is necessary for making selections, and this all requires a certain amount of time.

The main idea in urging early shopping, however, is consideration of the overworked salesmen and women, who have a hard time of it during the Christmas holidays. Instead of being to them a season of rejoicing, it is practically a nightmare. It means long hours of labor, extending well into the night, and absolute exhaustion at the end of the day.

It means but little to the average customer to begin making Christmas purchases early, but in the aggregate it is a matter of great importance to the merchants and their employees.

It is hoped that this annual appeal will be generally heeded and that the Christmas shopping will not be deferred until a day or so before Christmas.—Atlanta Journal.

Catching a Phraser.

A precious little girl living on one of the crowded business thoroughfares of the city was in the habit of gazing out of the window at the busy street below for hours at a time.

"What is it, Gladys, that you find so constantly interesting in the street?" asked her mother one day. "Oh," came the wise rejoinder, "just watching the cars go pro and con."—Harper's Weekly.

CAN'T SELL WHISKY

AS MEDICINE IN A PROHIBITION COUNTY.

Fine Imposed for Selling Liquor on Prescription of Physician Is Upheld.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 13.—According to a decision handed down by the court of appeals today whisky cannot be sold as a medicine in a local option county in this state. James Hudson was fined $60 by a jury in the Carlisle circuit court for selling whisky on a prescription, which was to be used for a child of Lucien Carter, who was threatened with pneumonia and the evidence of the physician and father of the child showed that the liquor was used as a drug.

The court also held that it was illegal for whisky to be sold on the Missouri river when the owner of the boat took up passengers on the Kentucky side for that purpose, and affirmed a verdict of the Fulton circuit court which found James Lemore guilty.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY CHAOTIC, DECLARES HOKE SMITH.

New York, Dec. 13.—Gov. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, was in town today to attend a meeting of the trustees of the Peabody fund, of which he is a member. Regarding conditions in the Democratic party, he said:

"I never saw such a chaotic condition. The more you look at it, the more chaotic it seems. The southern Democrats do not mean to be longer treated as if that section of the country was still in secession. We regard a southern Democrat as just as good as any other Democrat. The southern Democrat should be considered by the gray matter he has in his head, and not by the section in which he lives."

"Will the south have a candidate for the nomination for president next year?"

"No, I do not think so. No one seems to want it. But the present southern sentiment will manifest itself in the convention and everywhere else from now on."

A Baltimore Tribute to Sauerkraut.

Of all the multitude of duties that confront a public journal, none is more genuinely pleasant than that of noting, each autumn, the reappearance of sauerkraut upon the tables of the great plain people.

Sauerkraut comes upon the heels of Indian summer. It presages and foreshadows Thanksgiving day and Christmas. It is the first course in the gastronomic saturnalia which reaches a climax culmination in roast turkey. As every one knows, sauerkraut had its origin in the German empire, where it has been held in the highest honor and veneration for centuries. There are not a few, indeed, who hold that it is the Teutonic race's most noble gift to the universe. Musicians, of course, give the palm to the nine symphonies of Beethoven, and lovers of literature may be expected to vote for Goethe's poetry, but the generosity of ordinary folk make sauerkraut their first, last and only choice. It is the most nourishing and satisfying dish in the entire repertory. It soothes the mind, elevates the soul and, as the Germans say, sticks to the ribs. A man who has consumed a liter of sauerkraut is a man fit for any stupendous adventure, from yodeling to high jumping. Sauerkraut, as we have said, is of German nativity, but it was long since naturalized here in America.

In Baltimore many tons of it are eaten every winter. It is cheap, it is appetizing and it is easy to cook. Nothing else that recalls itself at this moment spreads such a tempting savor through the house. Put a pot of sauerkraut to boil before retiring and the whole family will dream of eating. And in the morning—if the air is crisp and it is true sauerkraut weather—the whole family will arise with sharp, keen appetites and sound digestions. Sauerkraut is equally apropos at breakfast, luncheon, dinner and supper. One may eat it late at night, go straight to bed—and yet escape all hallucinations and nightmares.—Baltimore Sun.

Japanese Spies in the United States.

Congressman Richmond P. Hobson says that the Japanese already have an army corps in Hawaii in the guise of workmen, and most of the papers of the United States are laughing at him as an unmitigated jingo exaggerator.

A prominent government officer, recently returned to Boston from Hawaii, tells a story of a Japanese servant who had worked as house servant in Honolulu for more than a year. In a house where the position of his employer gave him opportunity to overhear all kinds of government gossip and secrets, and who was afterward, by merest accident, discovered to be the son of a Japanese nobleman. Americans returning from Honolulu say that the city is full of Japanese spies, and consequently Hobson's story may not be wholly exaggeration. In the last two years, on more than one occasion when Japanese warships have visited this country, American naval officers have met Japanese naval officers whom they recognized as former messroom servants, which positions gave a spy an excellent opportunity to get inside knowledge.—Boston Traveler.

AMERICAN-GERMAN NATIONAL BANK

RE-ELECTION FOR MR. PULLIAM

National League Baseball Magnates Discuss Matters.

Recommended That Men Drafted From Minors Should Be Treated As Purchased Players.

COMMISSION IS TO DECIDE

New York, Dec. 13.—Harry C. Pulliam was re-elected president of the National league for the sixth time by the members of the league, who are in session here for their fall meeting. Frank DeHaas Robinson, of St. Louis, received one vote for the leadership of the league.

Secretary-Treasurer John Heydler was unanimously re-elected, as was the board of directors, consisting of Barney Dreyfuss, of Pittsburgh; Charles Ebbetts, of Brooklyn; Garry Herrmann, of Cincinnati; Charles Murphy, of Chicago, and George Dovey, of Boston.

The club presidents discussed changes in playing and rules and amendments to the league constitution. Max Fleishmann, of Cincinnati, brought up the question of placing the pitcher's box on a level with the diamond. There was a general discussion, but no action was taken.

A proposal that the number of pitched balls to a batter be reduced from four to three was advanced. There were advocates for and against the change, and the question was left open, to be decided later. The president recommended to the national commission that players drafted from minor leagues be treated as purchased players. Should the national commission adopt the recommendation, which is in the nature of a reform and designed to do away with the practice of "covering by draft" waivers will have to be sought from clubs of both the National and American leagues before drafted players can be returned or disposed of.

Joseph Kelley, manager of the Toronto team last year, signed a contract to manage the Boston National league club for two years.

Charles Murphy, president of the Chicago National league baseball club, gave a dinner to the club owners, baseball writers, players and officials who have been attending the sessions of the National league this week at the Waldorf in celebration of the capture of the world's championship by the Chicago club.

President H. C. Pulliam, of the National league, presided. At his side was Mr. Murphy, and on the left Garry Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati National club. About them, at the top of the horseshoe table, were grouped the club presidents and others in the baseball world.

Among the magnates it is the general impression there will be very few deals for players made. Most of the deals have already been made, or will be later, away from the glare and publicity of the annual love talk. President Robinson, of St. Louis, said:

"I do not look for many deals, if any. None of the clubs can do any trading or make deals for any of the new players we have secured until ten days after February 1, which is the time set for us to ask for waivers."

President Dovey said practically the same thing. He remarked: "It is up to our managers here. We will talk over matters, have a good time, shake hands with ourselves on the past season's success and adjourn."

Garry Herrmann said: "I have a pretty good team. I should like to strengthen it, of course, but you New York fellows have so many 'lemons' to deliver with your goods that you are pretty hard to deal with."

But as Herrmann would not announce the name of the new manager of the Reds there is a great big chance that Roger Bresnahan, who is known to have managerial aspirations, may figure in a deal for Huggins and some other layer.

While McGraw is reported to be "stuck" on Morrie as a first baseman, Fred Tenney as guardian of the infield sack for the Giants would not be averse to J. Muggsy.

The Pirates, too, could use Tenney to advantage, notwithstanding the rumored enmity between the Boston man and Fred Clarke. The whole situation hinges around the fact that the Reds need a manager and need one badly. So, although the magnates may decry the prospect of deals there is little doubt of some very important ones being pulled off.

Our two magnates are on the scene. Robinson doesn't expect to figure in any trades. That's because trades are seldom made at the December

IMPORTANT RULING

MISSOURI PACIFIC MUST REFUND OVER-CHARGES.

Interstate Commerce Commission Takes Up Nebraska to Iowa Case.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Important administrative ruling in a special-reparation case has been made by the Interstate commerce commission. Informal complaint was made by the Omaha Elevator company against the Union Pacific railroad respecting rates from Nebraska points to Council Bluffs, Iowa. Under date of July 5, 1907, in compliance with the law enacted by the legislature of Nebraska, rates to Omaha, Neb., from points on the defendant's line in Nebraska, were reduced. It had been the custom of the defendant to make the same rates to Council Bluffs, but in this instance it was not done until August 13, 1907. Meantime a number of shipments were made on which were applied the highest rates. The defendant admitted the rates to Council Bluffs were unreasonable and having expressed willingness to refund on such shipments, the commission issued authority permitting the defendant to refund to each complaining company the amount claimed. It is understood that similar excessive charges paid in the same circumstances by other shippers will also be refunded.

There are only 836 postoffices in Chile.

"I EXPECTED IT," SAYS BRYAN. Assumed From the First Roosevelt Would Adhere to Declaration.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 13.—Commenting on the positive announcement of President Roosevelt that he would not be a candidate for a third term, W. J. Bryan said: "I have assumed from the beginning that the president would not be a candidate. The statement he issued the night of election left no room for misunderstanding, and I have felt that his friends were doing him an injustice in suggesting that he would change his position on the subject."

A man without a collar button is almost as helpless as a woman without a hairpin.

Ed Clark Will Be Taken Tomorrow By Lieut. Potter.

Police Lieut. Thomas Potter will leave for Lexington tomorrow with Ed Clark, who was recently sentenced to three years in the state reformatory school, for housebreaking. The boy was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary, but on account of his age, his sentence was changed to three years in the reformatory school. The prisoners sentenced to the penitentiary will not be taken away until after court finally adjourns next week.

Danderine

GREW MISS LEWIS' HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

The Great Danderine Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results.

MISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length, when she began using Danderine. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor.

That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It enlivens, invigorates and fairly electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth of the hair.

The following is a reproduction of Miss Lewis' last letter:

January 3, 1903.
Dear Doctor Knowlton—
You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny braid.
I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bros. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it.
Everybody I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation.
Sincerely yours, (Miss) EVA LEWIS.

Danderine makes the scalp healthy and fertile and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp fertilizer and therefore the greatest hair-producing remedy the world has ever known. It is a natural food and a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a 25c bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes. 25 cents, 50 cents and $1. per bottle.
FREE. To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to any one who sends this advertisement to the J. C. Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, with their name and address, and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

PASSING OF BOSN'S WHISTLE.

Instrument Whose Use Was Once Important Ousted by Electricity in Recent Years.

Seattle, Wash.—With the disappearance of sailing vessels from the sea, another picturesque instrument, the bos'n's whistle, is passing to join the sea "shanty" and the figurehead. In the days of steam there is little use for the bos'n's whistle, which, with its various modulations and simple notes, indicated many sailing orders in the old days.

It is true that when many steamships dock the bos'n and his whistle are still in evidence, but the whistle is only a whistle of one note and its only use is to give two or three blasts to signal slackening or hauling in cables made fast to the dock. The old fashioned bos'n's whistle was a different instrument. Often it was elaborately made with filigree work about the mouthpiece and of diverse patterns. It was used to order trimming and shortening sail, calling to quarters, and the like. Today its only use, even aboard the warship, where many traditions of the sea are maintained, is to call attention to the giving of orders.

By a recent order of Admiral Lord Charles Beresford the bos'n's whistle is to be restored to use in the British channel fleet. While of no material consequence, many of the men who followed the sea in the old days would welcome a revival of the old custom on American men of war. In the merchant marine intricate systems of bridge telegraphs and telephones have done away with all need of the little whistle.

They're a Majority.

He—I understand two of your sisters have joined the great majority.
She—Yes. One of them married a man named Jones and the other a man named Brown.—Evening Mail.

To the Stone Yard.

The struggling author from the wilds of Indiana boldly entered the editorial sanctum.
"I have come with my latest story," he announced.

"That so," ejaculated the busy editor. "Let's hear how it runs."
"Well, this is from the first chapter: 'Casper had been standing as motionless as a block of granite. Suddenly he dropped on his knees before the beautiful girl with the alabaster brow and boldly proposed. It was then that she answered with a stony stare and handed him the marble heart. Then—'"

But the busy editor reached for the clipping shears.
"Young man," he thundered, "you have made a mistake. Take that story down to the nearest stone yard. This is an editorial office."—Chicago News.

DULA MAKES DENIAL.

Says American Tobacco Company Never Slandered.

New York, Dec. 12.—Caleb C. Dula, vice president of the American Tobacco company, testifying today in the hearing of the case of the government against the so-called tobacco trust, said the American Tobacco company never resorted to unfair or illegitimate methods to press its goods against those of a competitor. He denied that the American company ever attempted to slander or boycott the goods of independent concerns, and declared that they preferred to meet competition fairly and legitimately.

He said further that his company has no agreement with jobbers or any one concerning the marketing of its goods.
In the course of his testimony today Mr. Dula said his company voluntarily abandoned the use of the union label on its own goods, after giving due notice of its intention to do so. He said the abandonment of the label had not affected the company's business.

And So Was He.

He was a porter in a dry goods house and had put in five years without a kick and without a raise of wages. After scratching his head over it for a week he went to the manager the other day and said:

"Sir, meat has gone up."
"Yes."
"Rent has gone up."
"Yes."
"Clothing has gone up."
"Yes."
"Potatoes have gone up."
"Yes."
"Dry goods have gone up."
"Yes."
"Everything I eat has gone up."
"Yes."
"Well, sir—well—"

"No use to go further, James. Pack up your things. You are also gone up. We shall get a new man tomorrow."

The porter scratched his head some more, and then said:

"Sir, I think I was mistaken."
"Yes."
"Everything has gone down instead of up."
"Then you may go down and help finish packing those boxes."
And James went down.

GOOD FELLOWSHIP AMONG BLIND MEN

Buy Cigars of Blind Man and Play Cards Together

Know Difference in Denominations of Paper Money and Know Good Cigars.

SALOON NEXT DOOR IS CLUB.

A blind man, well dressed and prosperous in appearance, was slowly making his way along North Clark street, north of Belmont avenue and not far from Graceland cemetery. Another, who was more fortunate, and whose eyes were clear and bright, gazed sympathetically after the sightless one and murmured:

"Poor fellow! I wonder what joy such as he can find in this world? I'd rather be dead than like he. It must be terrible to be like that."

And the man with the good, clear eyes gazed after the sightless man until the latter disappeared into a saloon at 1819 Clark street.

Walking into a cigar store at 1821 Clark street the stranger called for a cigar. There was a barber shop attached and in the rear a number of sporty looking young men were playing pool and billiards. The stranger laid a five dollar bill on the show-case, and for the first time noticed that the man behind the showcase was also blind.

"Oh, excuse me," stammered the stranger, "I did not know that you could not see. Here, I will pay you in silver, as I do not suppose you can distinguish one bill from another."

"Oh, that's all right," replied the storekeeper, who said his name was Gus Grau, "I'm blind sure enough, but I know what the bill is. It is five dollars."

The stranger was surprised and questioned the sightless man behind. "I have been in business a number of years and have always done remarkably well. I own the barber business together with the billiard hall in the rear."

At this point three young men wearing light spring overcoats and flashing diamonds entered the store, greeting the proprietor merrily.

"We have come out to have a game of cards with you, Gus, and have framed it up to beat you or bust," announced one of the new arrivals.

"All right, boys," replied Gus in a cheery tone. "I'll be with you in a few minutes." Then he turned to the stranger, who asked:

"Where do all these blind men come from, and how is it they all seem to head for this particular neighborhood?"

"Oh, that's all very natural," replied the storekeeper as he made change for a ten-dollar bill, while the stranger gazed in amazement, and wondered how it was possible. "You see we blind men keep pretty well together, and as I am in business up here in Lake View, my friends know where I can always be found, and so they come here."

"But I saw several go into the saloon next door," suggested the stranger.

"Oh, yes," replied Gus, who insisted on being called by his first name, "that is where the good fellowship prevails."

"What! do you mean to tell me that you blind men go in for good fellowship?" asked the surprised stranger.

"Well, I should rather guess so," replied Gus. "There ain't anything too good for us. Most of us are in some business or other and doing better than some of our so-called more fortunate brethren, although we are unable to see. Why, in the place next door we are surrounded by fixtures that one time were the finest in this country. They cost a fortune and won the first prize at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. Oh, we're just as particular as you fellows, even if we can't see with our eyes."

At this point Gus invited the stranger to join himself and friends in the place next door. He half expected to find the keeper there a blind man, too, but Frank Swanson, the proprietor, greeted him with wide open eyes.

However, in one corner of the place was grouped a dozen or more blind men about a long table. Not a single one of them could see, but in spite of this they spent several hours playing cards and other games. They filled the place with their jokes and laughter, partook of lunch and refreshments, and then retired to their clubroom in the rear, where one of the blind men played a piano, another a violin, and a third a cornet.

Others sang, told stories, or recited pieces, and before the evening was over the stranger went away convinced that there is fun even for the blind.—Chicago Journal.

MILTON BIBLE

SAID TO BE FORGERY OF THE WORST TYPE.

Book Has Brought $1,225, But if Story is True It is Worth Only $500.

New York, Dec. 12.—Bibliophiles, bookworms, and all other followers of the sainted Caxton will pause their munching of the leaves of literature and hearken to the words of Alfred J. Barton, expert on ancient books, who says the Milton bible, containing what was thought to be one of nine genuine autographs of the great Puritan poet extant, is a spurious autograph forgery.

The old bible with the magic letters, "John Milton, Feb'y 24, 1654," in yellow ink on the binding inside the cover, first came to light in the possession of Alexander Howell of London seven years ago, and was pronounced genuine by Dr. W. Aldis Wright, vice master of Trinity college, Cambridge, editor of the Cambridge Shakespeare, by the expert of the London Athenaeum, and by other English scholars.

Book Sold at Auction.

The bible was put up at auction a few days ago at a book sale conducted by the Anderson Auction company of this city. The auctioneers acted as agents for William H. Buckler of Baltimore, secretary of the American legation at Madrid. Mr. Barton, acting as agent for George H. Richmond, a dealer in old books and autographs, bought the book at $1,225 under the stipulation that if investigation into its authenticity should not satisfy him it could be returned.

Mr. Barton, who prides himself on being a Sherlock Holmes of bibliography, set himself at once to go over the character of the Milton bible with a magnifying glass and plenty of skepticism. He found many autographs scrawled over the fly leaves. On one of the fly leaves in the book appeared the name, "W. Mathews," with the date 1726.

Found the Date Suspicious.

Mr. Barton explained today that it was the telltale, "W. Mathews, 1726," that first aroused his suspicions as to the genuineness of the Milton bible.

The body of the bible and the first blank leaves on either side of the first and last pages all are of old fashioned hand laid paper. Mr. Barton held the paper up to the light so his listeners could see the marks of wire gauze upon which the pulp had been laid down by hand and pressed. But the fly leaves in the front and back of the inside linings of the cover were made of woven paper.

This woven paper first was invented in 1750, explained the searcher. In that case, how could it have been that "W. Mathews" indited his name twenty-five years before the new processed paper was discovered?

Signatures Had Been Traced.

After discovering this discrepancy the bibliophile detective turned to the signature of Elizabeth Milton, Milton's third wife. Mr. Barton discovered that it had been traced twice with inks that varied slightly in color.

Mr. Barton took the bible down to the office of David N. Carvalho, the handwriting expert, and the expert gave it as his opinion that all the autographs scattered about on the woven paper fly leaves were forgeries.

If Mr. Barton's contentions are

An Agreement Reached.

Many and varied are the excuses offered at the local savings banks by depositors who want their money in a hurry. In all these cases the anxious ones expect the sixty-day limit order will be suspended for their individual benefit. The other day a man and woman entered a downtown bank and the man approached the teller's window with his bank book extended.

"I must have my money," he said. "My father he is sick in the old country. He will die."

The teller shook his head. He couldn't make any exception to the sixty-day rule.

The man went back to the woman and they conferred. Then the woman came forward.

"My man must go back to the old country," she explained. "His mother, she is sick. She will die."

"Why, your man said it was his father who was sick," remarked the teller.

The woman went back to the man and they conversed in an energetic manner. Then the woman returned alone. She smiled at the teller.

"Deity is both sick," she said.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"cream puff," I believe, has the advantage of natural curliness, which can not always be insured with growth. With bright eyes and a sunny smile and a what the novelists call an insouciant expression, nothing exceeds the cream puff.
The "Parker House roll" consists of a general disregard of the front exposure, but a stunning and complicated adornment of the back of the head. It begins about the crown of the head, with a structure about the shape of a real Parker House roll, and this is repeated down the back of the head to the modulla oblongata. It creoscos slightly about the middle of the back hair and diminuendos to the top and bottom, the effect being graceful and respondent.
It is susceptible of great elaboration and ornamentation and is especially effective at the theatre, where it should be worn only in the front row of the parquet.
The "frankfurter" is an especially fetching creation, consisting of a long curl dependent from somewhere underneath the hat and falling in gently graceful curves about the neck, giving an air of winsomeness and youth.
The "frankfurter" may be pinned to the inside straw of the hat or anchored to the hair with a hatpin. It may be curled over the finger or a hot iron, and at night should be suspended from the electric chandelier to insure retention of shape and beauty.
For ages from thirty-eight to fifty, nothing excels the "frankfurter," for elegance, style and youth. Its undulating folds ripple down the back of the neck with a grace impossible to describe and at night its length dependent from the chandelier casts a soft shadow upon the floor like the dreamy reflection of a lemonade straw.—New York Times.

A Real Dog Story.

Then said the king, The one saith,
This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the dead; and the other saith, Nay but thy son is the dead and my son is the living. And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king. And the king said, Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one and half to the other. Then spake the woman whose the living child was unto the king and she said, O my lord, give her the child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it. Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child and in no wise slay it; she is the mother thereof.—I. Kings, iv., 23-28.

A dog that answered pleasantly but indiscriminately to the names of Pete, Bill, Alfonso, Buster, or anything anyone wanted to call him,

presented a legal problem in the municipal court yesterday that made Judge Oscar M. Torrison's head ache.

Pete or Bill had the mange, but that did not detract from his value in the esteem of two families. Mrs.
Alexander Watson had him. Mrs.
Jeremiah Folsom claimed him. There was one set of expert witnesses willing to stake their lives on the assertion that Mrs. Watson rightfully possessed him and another willing to risk their hope of salvation on the statement that Mrs. Folsom had raised him from a puppy.

When the Watson experts spoke to the dog as Bill he became demonstrative in affectionate responses,

and when the Folsom contingent addressed him as Pete he made a complete change of front and was riot-ously friendly with the opposition.
when the deputy bailiff called him
Buster he sat up and shook hands.
and when the judge spoke to him as Alfonso he tried to kiss the court.

Friendly Beyond the Limit.

Bill was hopeless as a witness. He would have welcomed a dog catcher as a long lost friend, and would have been friendly with an Igorrote.
The Watson contingent positively identified him, because he had one toe missing on his right forepaw, and the Folsom contingent was as positive for the same identical reason.

It was up to Judge Torrison to decide what Bill's residence number should be in the future, and the judge had no more idea where Bill rightfully belonged than he had of the cause of the bad weather. In the meantime the affable and pleasantly sociable Bill was taking up considerable more court time than is right for any dog.

Solomon Aids in Verdict.

In the middle of this dilemma the judge happened to think of the decision of the supreme court of Israel handed down by Chief Justice Solomon. The court took a severe look at Bill and remarked:
"He has the mange."

This was about the one fact in the entire case which was generally apparent.
"Dogs which have the mange," continued the judge, "are dangerous and can be taken up by the city and put to death, humanely but firmly.
the court rules in this case that Bill, Pete, or whatever his name is, shall be taken by the dog catchers and killed."

"Well, of course," said Mrs. Watson, "no one wants a dog that's dangerous, and if Pete's that kind of a dog I'm sure Your Honor knows best what ought to be done with
him."

Mrs. Folsom had begun to weep quietly.

"Don't kill him, judge," she said.
"I'd rather you gave him to anyone else than have him killed. Bill's a good dog. Don't kill him."
Judgment entered in favor of the plaintiff," said the judge. "Court is adjourned."—Chicago Tribune.

Too Much Improvement.

A Connecticut farmer is reported to have invented a food which makes cows give pure cream instead of milk.
The difficulty is that in walking home
the cows so agitate the cream that it turns to butter. The same ingenious man, report has it, invented so successful an egg food last year that all his hens laid themselves to death.

After all the old-fashioned ways are the best.—New York Evening Sun.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe, one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Holcus Dactylus) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator... makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "In Holcus we have a medicinal root which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Holcus (Unicorn root). Pain or itching in the back, with leucorrhoea; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the uterus; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weak condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhoea (stoppage of the monthly period) due to a weak condition of the reproductive system; abnormal condition of the digestive organs and a general (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Holcus, and the medicinal properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions and general debility, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. E. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and catarrh of the uterus (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (with full directions) cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

THE TONGUE AND THE TEETH.

The Average Man Remarkably Ignorant as to Care of Both.

What does the average man know about his own mouth? Nothing. He doesn't even know how to clean his teeth, but must be told by some fool dentist who has a formula of his own. He doesn't know the number of his teeth. Ask the first friend you meet, "How many teeth have you?" Bet him a million he can't tell, and you will win. A tooth catechism would be of vast benefit to all who would take the pains to learn it by heart. I do not think it has ever been brought to the attention of humanity in general by those who pretend to know it all.

We breathe deeply to enlarge our lung capacity. We walk miles and miles to acquire big calves. We use dumbbells and Indian clubs to improve our biceps. We go through all sorts of Muldoonian nonsense to regain our secretarial level. We do this, that, and the other to cure Bright's disease and cirrhosis of the liver. We do everything under the deep dome of high heaven to cure all our ills—but never go to a dentist until we have such a toothache as drives to distraction, and more often to extraction.

Never pick your teeth with any hard substance. Bar the pick unless it is made of soft, white pine. Repeated use of a hard pick drives the gums away from the teeth, and pretty soon you are a victim of Riggs' disease. After the meal pick your teeth gently, then rinse out your buccal cavity in tepid water. After rinsing, use a gargle to clean out the throat—a solution of salt in water. Wash off your tongue as far back as you can reach, and scrape the root of it once in a while with an instrument of silver made for the purpose. And above all never put anything into your mouth that does not agree heartily with your stomach, if it is expected to descend below the throat latch.

It is never necessary for the tongue to talk in order to tell that you are ill or the nature of your illness. The tongue of the dumb is quite as eloquent when viewed by an experienced physician as the tongue of the most talkative person. It is a wonderful organ, and should be studied by all parents, not only on their own account, but on account of their offspring. It aids in mastication of food in drinking, in sucking, in articulation, and contains in its mucous membrane the peripheral organ of taste. There are doctors who will spend half an hour feeling of your pulse and listening to your heartbeats. There are others who command, "Stick out your tongue." One glance at your tongue will, to them, tell the tale. Why, there are practitioners so clever that they can tell by a glimpse of your tongue where you were last night, or last week, or last month.

Tremulousness of the tongue when it is protruded is a positive sign of various nervous diseases. But by far the commonest cause of this tremulousness is an excessive indulgence in alcohol. There is an old rule about looking into a man's eye to tell if he be a habitual lusher. It often fails. Drink, in some men, excites the lachrymal glands, causing the eye to appear watery. But all of us know men who have watery eyes, yet never touch liquor. But the best and final test is the tongue. It is the only sign that cannot be concealed. If a man seeking employment swears on a stack of Bibles that he does not drink, make him stick out his tongue. If it trembles—he is a liar.—New York Press.

A Dangerous Deadlock.

Stories of the Hour.

"Well, thank Heaven," said the beggar to the benevolent gentleman who had just handed him over a nickel, "I've found somebody at last that's got cash money. Everybody else I've met today has wanted to know if I could use a check."

Which brings a story from Cincinnati—or St. Louis, where one of the banking companies has a safety vault department. An old lady was unable to open her box and asked the aid of an assistant. Opened, she began to fill her handbag with gold coin and greenbacks.

"But, madam," said the attendant, "that is not permitted."

"Not permitted? Why not! by whom forbidden?"

"By the Clearing-house, madam. You will have to make a deposit of this money in the bank and draw your check on it, but no one is allowed to take any currency out of a Cincinnati bank."

Another story is told of a banker well known in New York, who was called up by a friend in the midst of the panic and asked, "What is the situation this morning?"

"Oh, better, very much better. And when I say better, I want you to know I tell one big lie."

In Pittsburgh they say the monetary stringency was due to the effort of one-half of the Four Hundred to get into English society, and of the other half to get divorced that they might marry actresses.

It is said Chicago is willing to resume cash payments as soon as she can be assured that no one will demand cash. At least, that is the interpretation given to Mr. Foghorn's circular letter of credit.

There is said to be a large increase in the demand from the country banks for burglar insurance. Their reserves are reputed to be so large that none of them could fail if they wanted to. All they fear now is that the burglar may take to burglarizing.

One day during the strike Col. Bennett H. Young boarded a Fourth-street car, when he was greeted with the cry from his personal friends, "Scab, scab."

"What does this mean from you gentlemen?" he asked.

"Oh, this is a scab car, but as you are attorney of record for the union men we think you have no right here, but ought to be made to walk."

The Colonel smiled, but explained he had an imperative engagement which did not permit delay.—Louisville Post.

McCLURE'S FOR 1908.

Plans for McClure's for the coming year have just been announced. The magazine, judging from its prospectus, will continue to deal with great and important subjects. The first of these began in the November number. It is a series of articles on Great American Fortunes.

This series of articles by Burton J. Hendrick will tell the story of the most wonderful era of fortune building in history.

Carl Schurz Reminiscences. This extraordinary popular interest aroused by the two series already published has decided the editors to add several other articles during 1908.

Ellen Terry Memoirs. It would be difficult to overstate the importance of Ellen Terry's Memoirs—they are a chronicle of the literary and artistic development of the last half-century. They present the impression of a woman, who during her extraordinary experience came into contact with nearly all the foremost personages of her time.

The Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy. The articles on the "History of Christian Science and the Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy," by Georgine Milmine, have been recognized the country over as the most important series of the year.

George Kibbe Turner and George Kennan are gathering facts for series of articles dealing with perhaps the two most momentous questions which confront the American people. One is largely economic in its nature; the other is not only economic, but it touches almost every home in the country in a vital way. Definite announcements of these two series will be made later in the year.

The Serial of the Year. Those who enjoy a good serial will do well not to miss "The Wayfarers," by Mary Stewart Cutting, which begins in the December number. It is one of the rarest things in modern literature—a real love story—and the author of "Little Stories of Married Life" has her own fresh and delightful way of telling it.

Agency Got Job For a Thief. Philadelphia, Pa.—A renewal of employment agency license was refused to Silas Smith, colored. Smith was accused of placing Horace Chamberlain, colored, in positions when he knew that he was a thief. Chamberlain is now serving a term in prison for robbery. According to the police the man has been a thief for years and has robbed a number of places where he has been employed.

Food Wastes in Dyspeptic Stomachs

It seems useless to eat when the stomach can't digest the food. Yet you must eat. Why not then repair your digestion? It can be done. Many ways have been recommended to you, but here is one that is guaranteed. Go to your druggist and get a 50 cent or $1 bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great laxative compound. It will create for you what nature does not seem to provide—the gastric and peptic juices necessary to digestion. Your lack of them has caused your dyspepsia. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup

Pepsin contains properties that stir the functions of the stomach and liver to activity—that makes it do what it otherwise would not do. It arouses the secretions of the glands which are essential to digestion, and in that way cures indigestion or dyspepsia. Let no dyspeptic say he is incurable. He cannot honestly say so until he has tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. One bottle will be sufficient to prove its merits, and that one bottle will only cost you 50 cents or $1 at your druggist.

They Were Cured by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

I was afflicted seriously with stomach trouble, and had not been able to obtain any relief from the different remedies which I had tried, until I finally heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I purchased a large bottle, and after taking same according to directions, I noticed a great improvement; I then bought two more large bottles, and when they were gone, I had no more trouble.

JOE MORPHY, 1725 W. Market St., Indianapolis.

I am in the best of health at this writing and have been ever since I took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a medicine I can recommend to anybody and have done so, and have been the means of your agents selling lots of Syrup Pepsin in our town and neighborhood. It has done a great deal of good. So many have used it since I took it people came to me for miles around and asked me what kind of medicine I took that did me so much good.

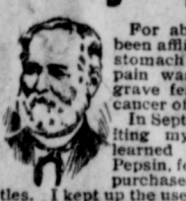

MRS. ISABELLE WHEELER, Prestown, Ind. I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and was greatly benefited. Have had indigestion and stomach trouble for many years and found great relief after using it, and can cheerfully recommend it to the public.

C. K. STONEBROOK, Liberty, Ind.

One can never tell what day some member of the family will become constipated or have indigestion, jaundice, bloated stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath, flatulency, lazy liver, weak stomach, sick headache or some other ailment affecting the stomach, liver or bowels, and then Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be instantly needed.

Myself and family suffered terribly from malaria, constipation and stomach troubles, and our physician could not help us. In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin we all found instant relief. I have gained 20 pounds and the children have improved wonderfully in health. Mrs. J. W. YEAGER, Beirle, Ark.

For about fifteen years I have been afflicted with indigestion and stomach troubles and at times the pain was so severe that I had grave fears that my trouble was cancer of the stomach. In September last year while visiting my brother in Chicago I learned of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for stomach trouble and purchased a couple of small bottles. I kept up the use of the remedy and since then I have been free from any stomach trouble, and I am fully persuaded that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has cured me. O. G. RICHARDS, Attorney and Pension Agent, Eudora, Kansas.

I can truthfully and willingly say that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is all that it is recommended to be. I have used it and know for myself what I state. I do not think it has an equal for stomach trouble. I have not words to express its value to me and there are many others of my acquaintances and friends who have used it with good results.

Mrs. MRS. E. ROLLINS, Dewey, Ill. I have given your Syrup Pepsin to our little boy for constipation and have found it very good, and can recommend it to anyone. I think anyone raising a family should not be without it.

Mrs. L. MORAN, Kansas City, Kans.

FREE TEST Those wishing to try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin before buying can have a free sample bottle sent to their home by addressing the company. This offer is to prove that the remedy will do as we claim, and is only open to those who have never taken it. Send for it if you have any symptoms of stomach, liver or bowel disease, indigestion, flatulency, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath, or any other ailment affecting the stomach, liver or bowels. A guaranteed, permanent home cure. THE PADUCAH VERDICT: "No laxative so good and sure as DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPsin." This product bears purity guarantee No. 17, Washington, D.C. Address: PEPSIN SYRUP CO., 107 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

as it is sure to cure these diseases. It is sold under a positive guarantee to do what is claimed for it or money will be refunded. It is easy to take because pleasant to the taste, is gentle in action but promptly effective, and entirely free from the griping so common in salts, purgative waters and cathartic pills, or powders. It is for that reason the best remedy for infants, children, women, old people, invalids and others and yet is active enough to be promptly effective in the most robust grown persons. Go to your druggist to-day and get a 50 cent or $1 bottle under the guarantee. Complete directions are on every bottle.

CITY ORDINANCE

AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE SALE OR USE OF TOY PISTOLS, CANNON CRACKERS, TORPEDOS AND OTHER HIGH EXPLOSIVES IN THE CITY OF PADUCAH, AND PROVIDING A PENALTY FOR ANY VIOLATION HEREOF.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE GENERAL COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF PADUCAH, KENTUCKY:

Section 1. That the sale or use in the city of Paducah, by any person, firm, company or corporation of toy pistols, designed to use powder, dynamite or any other high explosive or the sale or use in the city of Paducah of cannon crackers, torpedoes, or other high explosives, except roman candles and sky rockets, is prohibited; provided the Mayor, upon application therefor, may, in his discretion, grant permission to shows and exhibitions, to use same in the performance or exhibition contemplated, but such permit shall be in writing, signed by the Mayor, and must state the time and place said fireworks and explosives may be used.

Sec. 2. That it shall be unlawful for any person to explode or shoot any roman candles or sky-rockets, on any public street, alley, way or grounds of the city of Paducah.

Sec. 3. That any person, firm, company or corporation, violating this ordinance, shall upon conviction thereof, in any court of competent jurisdiction, be fined not less than $10.00 nor more than $25.00, and each sale or use of any of the articles referred to herein, in violation hereof, shall constitute a separate and distinct offense.

Sec. 4. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force, from and after its passage, approval and publication.

Girl Held in Virtual Slavery When She Sought Employment at Home.

Ausbury Park, N. J., Dec. 13.—Weakened and unnerved by the terrible experiences she had undergone in a log cabin in the wilds of North Carolina, Miss Olga Sjostedt, a trained nurse, who had been held a prisoner twelve days on the plantation of T. E. Pender, returned to Ausbury Park today, accompanied by Thomas Broderick, a police officer of this city, who was sent to her aid by local officials at the solicitation of the nurse's friends, to whom she had applied for aid.

According to her statement she is the fifty-second woman that has been secured under false pretenses and held prisoner by Pender with vicious intentions. Her rescue by Broderick and the North Carolina officers was effected after the former had battered down the door of the shack, which was unfit for human habitation.

Miss Sjostedt said she will prosecute the planter to the full extent of the law. According to the nurse's story she went to North Carolina, believing she was to reside as housekeeper over an ante-bellum mansion. She secured the position by advertising in a New York newspaper. She reached the plantation the day before Thanksgiving. Instead of the pictured mansion she was ushered into the two room shack, which formerly was a liquor saloon, and which was filthy. The windows of the rooms were barred. In searching her room she found a bundle of bags, beneath which was the body of a negro. Complaining to her employer, he replied:

"O, that was my last housekeeper. I will have her buried tomorrow."

This was the only promise he fulfilled during Miss Sjostedt's enforced sojourn.

Snuggles Letters to Friends.

Pender made improper advances to the nurse. She repulsed him and seizing her hatpin drove him from the room, after which he bolted the door from the outside. She was locked in her room every time he left, and she was most of the time a veritable prisoner. At night she wrote letters to her friends in Ausbury Park and succeeded in mailing them at the rural free delivery box when her inhuman employer was eating or in his room smoking. Letters from her friends were intercepted by Pender and destroyed.

Miss Sjostedt was forced to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning, milk the cows, feed the pigs and chickens, and clean three horses. Her Thanksgiving dinner consisted of corn bread and salt pork cooked in old tomato cans. She threatened to leave Thanksgiving day, but Pender insisted she would have to stay for three months. Night after night he attempted to force his attentions upon her, but each time she repulsed him with her only weapons, hatpins. Learning the officials were coming to take her away, Pender forced her to sign a paper saying she had not been ill treated.

Badly Mixed Up.

Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N. Y., had a very remarkable experience. He says: "Doctors told badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth, blood poison and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me; so my wife advised trying Electric Bitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five doctors prescribed." Guaranteed for blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints, by all druggists, 50c.

SENSATION

CAUSED BY WITHDRAWAL OF PRINCE FROM NAVAL LEAGUE.

Activity of Organization in Politics is Said to Be the Reason for His Action.

Munich, Dec. 13.—A considerable local sensation has been caused by the resignation from the German Naval League of Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria, who was a member of the executive committee of the Bavarian branch of the league.

The action of the prince is understood to have been dictated by a desire to protest against the active political agitation of the league, and to have followed a disagreement with Major General Keim, managing director of the league, and other leaders in matters of policy.

Major General Keim, who has held quarters in Berlin, decided several important matters without consulting the prince, thus giving him the impression that his name was wanted only for the prestige it carries.

League About to Collapse?

The resignation has caused a flurry in high Bavarian social circles, and a large number of public officials and aristocratic friends of the prince already have followed his example. The defections from the league may be the beginning of the weakening of this powerful organization.

The league has upward of a million members. It sends lecturers into all the rural districts to urge that a powerful navy be built up if the empire is to be relieved from the danger of a war with Great Britain, it commands considerable sums for agitation, and it endeavors to make the navy attractive to young handmen by the presentation of pictures of navy life with the stereopticon and the cinematograph.

Government Hampered by Demands.

The league has become so energetic and influential of late that the government has been embarrassed by its demands for a more rapid increase in the navy than the reichstag is willing to vote or the imperial finances are able to stand.

The country unquestionably has been started by the published estimates of the probable cost of the navy from 1908 to 1917, which averages $104,000,000 a year, especially as these estimates are figured on a low basis.

The admiralty, in its published recommendations, reckons that the empire will have to borrow $189,000,000 for naval purposes up to 1917.

THE VAMPIRE.

The Countess Maria Nicolaevna now being tried in Russia for the death of Count Karamovsky, who adored her. The trial revealed a plot seldom found outside of fiction. "The Vampire," as the countess is called, came from an obscure family. She was beautiful and, when 17 years old, she was stolen by Count Tarnowski, who married her. They had two children. One evening the countess, in the presence of her husband, kissed a young man who had been paying attentions to her. The count shot and killed him. He was acquitted, and secured a divorce. The countess then plunged into the vortex of unrestrained passion. She wrecked four happy families and many in-

HE VISITED SOME PATIENTS.

(Chattanooga, Tenn., Daily News.) A representative of the News has just returned from a very successful visit to California.

Concerning the reports that the long sought cure for Bright's Disease has been discovered, he took special pains to find out the truth of the matter, and came back fully convinced.

One lady, the wife of a San Francisco editor, not only told of her husband's remarkable recovery after physicians had given him up, but she revealed off as of no moment, the names of several they told of it who had recovered. One case was particularly interesting. It was a case of Bright's Disease in which the young man was so impressed that nothing could be done that he had to be tricked into taking the new specific. Each time a dose was administered a tablespoonful of his old medicine was secretly disposed of, thus allaying suspicions. To complicate matters as the young man recovered, the physician became elated, thinking he had discovered a cure for Bright's Disease. It was not until the patient was so well along toward recovery that there was no uncertainty about it that the whole plot was disclosed. One of San Francisco's pioneer druggists also confirmed his own recovery and made the astonishing statement that he had given it to between 40 and 50 and only knew of a few failures.—Chattanooga Daily News.

I sent for this treatment for patients here and will give full information.—W. B. McPherson, Paducah, Ky.

SKELETON AT HIS FEAST.

A Thing of the Past for a Portland, Me., Man.

Many a person in Paducah sits down to a table laden with good things, but a staring skeleton at the board warns them that they satisfy their appetite at their peril. This skeleton of indigestion has become a phantom of the past to many persons who have restored their digestive organs to a normal condition by taking our delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol. Vinol is rich in alternative elements which restores natural assimilation, and makes rich, red blood which in turn strengthens every organ in the body to do its work as nature intended.

Mr. W. E. Waterhouse, of Portland, Me., writes: "I suffered so long with stomach trouble and indigestion that I lost flesh rapidly. Vinol cured me after everything else had failed. It strengthened my digestive organs, gave me a hearty appetite, and I can eat anything without the slightest distress. I do not believe any other medicine equals Vinol for stomach troubles and indigestion."

We ask Paducah people who suffer with indigestion, and every weak, aged or run-down person to try Vinol. If it does not help you we will return purchase money. W. B. McPherson, Druggist, Paducah, Ky.

ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE TEST.

Use of Specially Constructed Apparatus to Determine What Speed Can Be Made.

Clayton, N. J.—In the Pennsylvania electric locomotive speed test here, the big engine, No. 10,003, made sixty miles an hour without half of her power equipment. Her engineer, Richard Doughty, and the experts who witnessed the test, were delighted with her performance. They say she can easily pull a freight train of seventy cars.

In preparation for these tests, the company has laid a short section of track costing $500,000 a mile. The special ties which have been placed in this section cost $16,000. The experts are trying to ascertain how fast it will be safe to run on curves, paying particular attention to the pressure on the rails.

The curve just below the Franklinville station has been selected for their observations. An electric stop clock in the station registers the speed of the train, and a series of electric instruments connecting with the rails at the curve show the outward pressure on the tracks as the train rushes over it.

One of the largest combination baggage coaches was attached to the engine and shoes put on the car.

In the baggage room a great array of electric appliances were placed to change the alternating current to direct current. Although it was the first time the engine ever ran under her own power, she glided smoothly down the track, apparently without an effort, at the rate of sixty miles an hour. It is expected that she will be able to make 100 miles an hour in subsequent tests.

This engine does not look unlike one of the "camel back" type, except that she has no smokestack. She has drive wheels the size of a regular engine, and the bell is on top instead of in front. On the top is an arrangement which will take the wire, but it is very unlike the trolley pole. It will not "clip the trolley," and can be set in place by the engineer pressing a button.—Philadelphia North American.

NO PRESENTS

NOTHING BUT FLOWERS AND RED APPLES FOR TEACHER.

Put on Par With Officials of Diplomatic Corps in Regard to Costly Decorations and Gifts.

Complaint has been made to Superintendent Carnagey and the school trustees that funds were being solicited from the pupils by members of different grades and classes for the purpose of buying Christmas presents for the teachers, and the attention of the teachers has been called to the regulation, which forbids the acceptance of presents by the superintendent or teachers from pupils. While the same rule has been in force many years it has not been strictly observed, and it is said that some of the teachers have received presents on holidays.

The provisions in the edition of the revised rules, which is now in press, and a copy of which will be given each teacher. The section referred to is the same that has appeared in the rule book since the year 1888 according to an investigation by Superintendent Carnagey.

None of the teachers who received presents from their pupils and classes during the present term will be reprimanded.

FEAR FOR SOPHIA OF SWEDEN.

Dowager Queen Confined to Her Bed From Care of Oscar.

Stockholm, Dec. 13.—The condition of Dowager Queen Sophia is occasioning anxiety. The strain upon the queen incident to the illness and death of King Oscar was very severe, and since his death she has been almost constantly confined to her bed.

The body of the late King Oscar was removed from the castle to the chapel, where it will lie in state from Friday next until the day of the funeral.

King Gustave and Queen Victoria this afternoon received in audience the members of the diplomatic corps accredited to Sweden, who presented their condolences on the death of King Oscar. The recipients of the Nobel prizes for this year also were granted private audiences by their majesties.

(The desire that the memorial services for the late King Oscar be rendered by Chicago Swedish-Americans shall not conflict with the Christmas celebrations has caused next Sunday to be set aside as the day to do reverence to the memory of the deceased monarch. The date of the national funeral of the former ruler will probably come in the holiday week. While special services will be given on that day in all Swedish churches in the city, no further demonstration will be made by the societies and residents who will attend the churches and the Orchestra hall memorial meeting next Sunday.)

Favor Anti-Pass Provision.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 13.—The committee on public service corporation of the convention drafting a revised state constitution today recommended that all state officers, including members of the legislature and judges, be prohibited from accepting from transportation companies, or telephone and telegraph companies, any free passes, tickets or franks of any description.

WHAT AN AWFUL SNOWSTORM!

Fell in 1905—Chicago Still Hiring Men to Clear It Away.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Far-reaching effects of the snowstorm of January, 1905, were uncovered last night by the city civil service commission. The most interesting phenomenon discovered was that 1,100 street laborers still are employed by the city for the removal of that remarkable snowfall.

Notwithstanding the scientific interest developed, the commission unanimously decided that, from reasons of economy, a new rule, limiting to five days the period for which emergency street-cleaning laborers may be employed in Chicago, is necessary.

According to the records, these 1,100 emergency laborers were kept pegging at the removal of that snowfall through the campaign of Mayor Edward F. Dunne, and all through his administration. Curiously enough, the number of men required for the removal of snow rose to 1,500 in July.

GARIBALDI HEIRS NEAR CLASH.

Widow and Children of Patriot Quarrel Over His Tomb.

Rome, Dec. 13.—The quarrel between the children and the widow of Giuseppe Garibaldi, the Italian patriot, over the tomb of the latter on the island of Capri, has reached an acute stage. Garibaldi's son, Ricciotti, claims that he is entitled to the possession of the tomb of his father. The widow and daughter of the liberator, however, emphatically declare they will not allow Ricciotti to put his foot on the island, as they allege he wishes to steal the body and transport it to Rome. The local garrison has been made use of to prevent a collision between the adherents of the two parties.

Lost Their Hands But Saved Comrades

New York, Dec. 13.—In order to save a number of comrades from death, Oliver Jude and John J. McGlynn, iron workers, each lost a hand yesterday. The two men were at work on the Long Island City tower at the new Blackwell's Island bridge. They were working high up on the structure, and it was their duty to guide into place the great steel plates on which the girders rest. Below them were working a score of other men. One of the great plates that had just been settled into place suddenly began to slide. Unless it was stopped it would plunge from its base onto the heads of the men who were working below. Jude and McGlynn saw the danger, and shout, ing to the workmen below, each threw an arm around a beam and each seized with his free hand the sliding plate. By a frantic effort they slipped the plate to one side so that it rested against a beam. But they were unable to withdraw their hands in time, and they were caught between the plate and beam. Jude's right hand was cut off at the wrist and McGlynn's left hand was terribly mangled. Comrades rigged a tackle Theater Crusade Maintained.

Kansas City, Dec. 13.—Sixty-two indictments, of which fifty-seven are against actors and actresses, were returned by the grand jury today.

With the exception of one theater, all the players were appearing at matinee performances. The county marshal said that they might finish their performance and then go to the criminal court and give bond.

The grand jury is directing its efforts against those who have "speaking parts" and draw good salaries and is not attacking chorus girls and supernumeraries. Indictments against managers, musicians and house employees are to follow.

HISTORIC HOMES

MANY NOTED BUILDINGS LOCATED IN PHILADELPHIA.

Steps Will Be Taken to Preserve as Many of Them as Possible.

The attention of the Colonial Dames of New Jersey has been turned to the many historical buildings in this city and steps are to be taken to preserve as many of these as possible.

One of the most interesting and one which has undergone more alteration than is common among Burlington houses is the Bradford mansion on Broad street. Mrs. William Bradford, who lived there was a daughter of Elias Boudinot, president of Congress. Boudinot built the house in 1798, and he entertained there the Washingtons, the Madisons, the Hamiltons, Lafayette, and all the distinguished society that the place and the period could boast of. Mrs. Bradford was the last of the "Washington circle," and the older distinct remembrance of her taking the air in a sedan chair, or driving to church in a yellow chariot, upholstered in crimson.

On High Street two old houses, of exceeding interest stand close beside each other. They were built in 1687. Both are of stucco, and their prim roofs lack the usual flamboyant gable so familiar with this section. The light green one was the boyhood home of Captain James Lawrence of the Chesapeake, whose dying words "Don't give up the ship" have made his name immortal. In the other house, light brown with white trimmings, James Fenimore Cooper was born. He and Lawrence were boys together and here the author of the "Leatherstocking Tales" spent some of the happiest years of his life.

When the Quakers who settled Burlington rowed past where a huge woods marked where Philadelphia was afterwards founded they came to a land where a low gravel beach met the river turning northward and high banks rose on either side laden heavy with green and perfumed undergrowth and lofty sycamore trees. Here they started Burlington. The pioneer settlers were joined by others the same year, and of these a large party came in the Shield, direct from Hull, England. The Shield was the first sailing vessel to penetrate so far up the Delaware river, and when it reached Burlington it was moored to a sycamore tree which stands to this day.

Burlington, despite its Quaker antecedents has long been a stronghold of the Episcopalian Church in America, and in this respect, owing to its predominate hierarchical society, has frequently been likened to an English Cathedral town. The original St. Mary Protestant Episcopal Church was founded in 1703, and was built as plain as a barn. In its graveyard lies buried John Talbot, the first American Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal faith.—Philadelphia North American.

TALE OF A POSTAL CARD.

Made in Berlin. Sold in Honolulu. Mailed in Japan. Delivered in New York.

"Here is a postal card with a story," said a young New Yorker to a bunch of chums in one of the cobweb eating houses over in old Greenwich. "About the middle of last summer I said good-bye to the chap whose chirography is on this card."

"The imprint on one end of this card shows that it was made in Germany. To this information you will see is added the words, in print, 'Sold in Honolulu.' On the other side of the card is a colored picture of the Bay of Honolulu."

"Here in the proper place is a

United States postage stamp. The postmark is Yokahama. And here, just over the superscription, is the stamp of the steamer which brought it across the Pacific.

"The name of the steamer shows that she carries the French flag. There it is. If you know anything about French you know what I say is so."

"From Berlin across the Atlantic, maybe it was by way of Suez, but if the first is true, then across the continent to Honolulu; then to Japan, back again across the Pacific, and then again across the continent from 'Frisco to New York. From Japan to the metropolis for 2 cents, United States postage."

"And it's as fresh as a daisy. That isn't all. You all know Slimmy Jim, as we called the infinitesimal runt that caused more trouble at Cornell than a grasshopper under a lawn shirt waist."

"Well, I met the runt yesterday and when he got his second wind he said he had met the man whose name is written here, in Yokahama, and that he told him he had just mailed this card to me. It came over with the runt on the French steamer. Today's mail puts the runt out of the Ananias class, where I had pegged him. Garcon! Get busy."—New York Sun.

Miraculous Tale.

Johnson waited patiently until Thompson had finished his fishing story; then he said:

"I want to tell you something that happened to me right up in the wild district where you say you landed a string of a thousand in half a day. You know Beverly and I went up there two summers ago in an automobile?"

"Yes, I remember."

"Well, sir, we lost our way, and for five days and nights we couldn't sight a farmhouse or a human being."

"Have any food with you?" asked Thompson.

"Not even a sandwich."

"What did you live on?"

"Soup—soup morning, noon and night."

"Soup? But what did you have to make soup of?"

"Why," said Johnson, without even the suspicion of a smile, "the first day we got lost the auto struck a stone and turned turtle."—Judge.

Boy's Leg $10,000; Boy's Life $800.

New York, Dec. 12.—A boy's life is worth $800, but a boy's leg is worth $10,000, according to two verdicts brought in in the supreme court here yesterday. In one part of the court John Sheehan, whose 12-year-old son was killed in a runaway accident, was awarded $800 damages, and in another part of the court a jury awarded $10,000 to Arthur Clements, a 10-year-old boy, who lost a leg through being run over by a trolley car.

Dolls

We are showing by far the greatest line of Dolls ever brought to Paducah—dolls of all kinds and at all prices from 50c to $6.50 each.

Dressed Dolls, Baby Dolls, kid body dolls, French dolls, papier mache jointed dolls and the Celebrated Kestner Jointed Dolls

are shown here in all their life-like beauty. Dolls with eye lashes—in fact, we have just the doll you are looking for and at the price you want to pay.

Special this Week

A $1.50 hip and jointed kid body doll for $1.00. The best value in the city.
